Divorce Law Repeal Nixed By Italians

ROME (AP) — The overwhelming defeat of the Vatican's campaign for repeal of the Italian divorce law spurred a drive today to end the privileged status of the Roman Catholic Church in Italy.

Despite a vigorous, two-month campaign by Italy's bishops, most of its 190,000 priests and nuns, and the Vatican's political allies in the Christian Democratic party, Italians voted 3 to 2 in a referendum Sunday and Monday to retain the divorce law that has been on the books only since 1970.

anticlerical groups announced a nationwide drive to collect signatures on a petition calling for a referendum on all laws giving the Church a special position.

One such law stipulates that "the Roman, Catholic, Apostolic religion is the only religion of the state." Others give tax exemptions and other privileges to agencies of the Church and Vatican employees.

The outcome of the referendum was also a stinging rebuff to the Christian Democrats, Italy's dominant party ever since World War II, and its secretary-general, former Premier Amintore Fanfani, who led the party fight against the divorce law.

The campaign divided Premier Mariano Rumor's centerleft coalition government and promised new stresses and strains for it in the future. The three smaller parties in the coalition — the Socialists, Democratic Socialists and Republicans — were for divorce, along with the Communists; the Christian Democrats and the Vatican were supported only by the neo-Fascists of the Italian Social Movement, whose backing usually is considered an embarrassment.

Thousands celebrated Monday night in Rome and a dozen other cities, singing, honking horns and cheering. There was some violence. Leftist and rightist youths battled with iron bars and sticks in Naples and nearby Salerno, and six persons were injured. Leftists in Milan set fire to the office of a rightwing labor union. In Bergamo, which voted for repeal of divorce, leftists stoned the building of a Catholic newspaper.

Interior Minister Paolo Emilio Taviani announced that 88.1 per cent of the electorate voted. The final count was 19,093,929, or 59.1 per cent, in favor of allowing divorce and 13,188,184, or 40.9 per cent against its legal retention.

Nixon Houses Too Costly, Solons Agree

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House report concluding $17 million in federal funds has been spent in connection with President Nixon's homes has broad support of Republicans who say security spending has gotten out of hand.

Several Republicans said they expected the report to get overwhelming approval of the House Government Operations Committee today, not as criticism of Nixon but of wasteful security spending.

The report proposed to the committee recommended the government take action to recover "any improper expenditures."

It also recommended security spending in the future be strictly limited to only one of a president's private homes.

The report said the $17 million—$9 million for San Clemente and $8 million for Key Biscayne plus $176,000 for Grand Cay in the Bahamas, where Nixon is a frequent guest of his friend Robert H. Abplanalp—covers all costs including personnel in connection with the homes.

It said some of the spending was "far in excess" of security requests and that some of it was for items contracted by Nixon's aides rather than regular federal agencies.

The report accused the Secret Service and other agencies of having "abused the discretion given them" by Congress' lack of restraints on security spending.

"As a result, government expenditures for all purposes at privately owned property have risen from practically nothing during the Roosevelt-Truman era to over $5 million in the Johnson administration and over $17 million during the first five years of the Nixon administration," the report said.

Judiciary Panel Pushes Ahead On Impeachment

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Judiciary Committee today began its first full day of reviewing impeachment evidence with most members expected to get their first chance to listen to White House tapes.

Committee members went into the closed session carrying the thick looseleafed index books they received last week from the committee staff. While the panel moved ahead with its review of the evidence its staff has collected over the past four months, President Nixon continued to put out word that "there isn't any chance" he will leave office voluntarily.

The committee session today was expected to focus on the Watergate cover-up, when the President learned of it and what he did about it.

In addition to the index listing all the materials collected by the staff, committee members receive each day another looseleaf book laying out the specific allegations and the evidence supporting them.

Day-long closed sessions are scheduled for today, Wednesday and Thursday.

Extraordinary security was in force for the committee sessions. The committee hearing room was sealed with no one other than the 38 members of the panel and its staff allowed inside before or after sessions.

For the first time, committee members other than the chairman and ranking Republican were to listen to some White House tapes.

On Wednesday, the committee is scheduled to vote on issuance of a subpoena demanding additional tapes. Notice of the meeting, sent to committee members on Monday, did not specify which tapes would be sought.

However, it was learned late last week that the subpoena would include a meeting on April 4, 1972, involving the President, H. R. Haldeman and John N. Mitchell. Four days before that meeting, according to testimony by Jeb Stuart Magruder, Mitchell approved a political intelligence plan that included bugging Democratic National Committee headquarters in the Watergate office building. Chairman Peter W. Rodino Jr., D-N.J., has said he hopes to complete the closed portion of the Watergate break-in and cover-up presentation this week.

But during the initial session last Thursday, the pace proved slower than Rodino and John Doar, chief counsel of the impeachment inquiry, had anticipated.

And the tape playing could slow it even more. All who have heard any of the tapes have described them as extremely difficult to understand.

At the White House on Monday, Caspar Weinberger, secretary of health, education and welfare, told newsmen that the President has assured him "there isn't any chance" he would resign.

Renewed statements of the President's determination to stay in office followed calls last week from some Republican members of Congress for the President to consider resignation.

Shoemaker, D-88 Bourneville, who will sponsor the administration bill, said he wanted to discuss it with members of his committee before introducing it. He indicated he will call a committee meeting today to look at proposed expenditures other than the $27.4 million for vocational education and the bonus.

The remaining $16.1 million would go for various projects enumerated by the governor a week ago. Republicans indicated they will not go along with what they called "Gilligan's barrel" proposals aimed at getting votes in an election year.

Senate Finance Chairman Max H. Dennis, R-10 Wilmington, called Gilligan's bill "a list of misplaced priorities" and said Senate Republicans plan to offer a supplemental appropriations bill of their own. Dennis was especially critical of the Gilligan bill because it ignored the issue of tax relief.

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger returned to Damascus today for more talks with President Hafez Assad amid reports that Syria and Israel have moved closer to a disengagement agreement.

The Egyptian chief of staff, Lt. Gen. Mohammed Abdel Ghany el-Gamasy, also was in Damascus. Egyptian President Anwar Sadat has been urging Assad to come to terms with Israel, but Syrian government spokesmen denied a report by the Iraqi news agency that Sadat was also in the Syrian capital.

Kissinger was due back in Israel later today with the Syrians' response to the latest Israeli proposals.

United States officials indicated Monday that the two governments are close to agreement on thinning out armor behind the eventual disengagement lines and on what kind of United Nations buffer force will stand between their armies.

One senior American official said Israel and Syria had moved closer to agreement on the location of the front lines their forces would man on the Golan Heights. But he said while the distances still in dispute are relatively small, they are of major concern to both sides.

The source said there still was no guarantee that Kissinger's on-the-spot diplomacy—now in its 17th day—will produce an agreement.

Newsmen were told the secretary should know by Wednesday whether a disengagement is possible. But his aides said he plans to return to Washington no later than Sunday.

Israel has been reported willing to give up, either to Syria or the U.N. force, all of the territory captured in the October war plus part of the abandoned town of Quneitra, half a mile inside the territory captured in 1967.

U.S. officials refused to outline the remaining differences between the Israeli and Syrian territorial positions. But they claimed the sticking point was not three hills around Quneitra which Israel is concerned about because they look down on some of the settlements the Israeli government has established on the Golan Heights. The hills probably would be turned over to the U.N. buffer force, the sources said.

Wiretap Ruling Hits Cases

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some major criminal prosecutions are in danger because former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell failed to follow the law on wiretap authorization. However, the Justice Department says it cannot identify the threatened 626 prosecutions.

The Supreme Court ruled unanimously Monday that evidence obtained by the illegally authorized wiretaps is inadmissible.

The department, in a court filing, gave the figure of 626 prosecutions involving organized crime and narcotics cases. However, spokesman Bob Stevenson said after the Supreme Court decision that the department only compiled that number and does not know which cases they represent.

"We don't have the cases broken up. We'll have to canvass the U.S. attorneys," Stevenson said.

However, another Justice Department source, when asked whether any major cases would be thrown out as a result of the decision, responded, "Oh, yes. Definitely."

Another spokesman said the decision does not necessarily mean that all 626 prosecutions will be lost. "It may be that only some counts against an individual resulted from the wiretaps. The evidence for the other counts could still stand," said Horace S. Webb. The high court said the department

A lower court noted that Lindenbaum not only authorized the memoranda of approval, but also signed them with Mitchell's initials.

Although spokesmen said there was no enumeration of the 626 prosecutions, previous testimony established that Lindenbaum signed authorizations for at least some of the wiretaps that resulted in some 500 arrests during "Operation Eagle," a nationwide attack on drug abuse in 1969.

Ohio Legislators Set Action On Major Bills

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A controversial bill eliminating mayors' courts and creating more than three dozen new judgeships in Ohio faced a major obstacle today in the House Rules Committee.

Leaders called up the omnibus bill for consideration as the lawmakers returned from their primary election recess. Action was on tap on several major measures this week in the hope the Senate and House can quit for the year in about a month.

Gov. John J. Gilligan's new supplemental appropriations bill, allocating $43.5 million from anticipated state lottery revenues, received a top priority among new matters proposed since the legislature recessed April 4. It is among about 80 new bills.

It would earmark $14.9 million for retirement of Vietnam bonus bonds and $12.5 million for vocational education construction in the fiscal year starting July 1, among other things.

House Finance Chairman Myrl

could come to a floor vote in the House Wednesday. The Rules Committee considered it at a meeting last week, but it fell one vote short of the seven needed to schedule it for a floor vote.

Wilkowski said he has the seventh vote in Rep. James P. Celebrezze, D-4 Cleveland, who was absent from last week's Rules Committee session.

The Toledo lawmaker said he intends to remain firm against efforts by some House leaders and others to take out the mayors' courts abolition but retain the new judgeships.

Many of the lawmakers are under local pressures in their home districts to retain mayors' courts which often provide significant municipal revenues. Wilkowski and others include traffic "speed traps" among their arguments to get rid of them.

They also contend that since most mayors head up law enforcement efforts in their communities, it is wrong for them to sit as an official in the judicial branch of government. However, most of Ohio's estimated 500 mayors' courts have survived a 1972 decision of the U.S. Supreme Court that said, among other things, that the courts could receive guilty pleas but not try the case of a defendant who pleads innocent.

Wilkowski conceded that if the bill gets to the House floor, amendments will be offered to strip the measure of the mayors' courts provision. "I will be against all the amendments and argue the bill on its merits. If they (the opponents) want to place politics above good government, that's their business," the judiciary chairman said.

The bill needs a two-thirds majority, or 66 votes, in the House — a constitutional requirement for legislation that creates new courts. The bill proposes to create municipal courts in Wadsworth and New Philadelphia, where none now exist. It otherwise adds new judges to existing courts.

Rep. Richard H. Finan, R-19 Cincinnati, said Monday he will offer an amendment — if the bill comes to the floor — which he hopes will let the House reach a compromise.

He will propose, he said, that mayors courts be retained in the statutes, but that the mayors on their own could request a county judge or municipal judge to come in as so-called "circuit riders" to hear mayors' court cases.

Finan predicted his amendment would have the effect of putting mayors' courts out of business anyway "in about five years." He said most mayors he has talked to have stated they do not like to hold court. "They regard it as just another responsibility, another night out," he said.

The Cincinnati Republican conceded his amendment would add a heavy burden to county and municipal judges, but pointed out that they would be able to assign referees to hear cases in their place. Referees, under existing law, must be attorneys.

"That at least would overcome some of the objections to mayors hearing cases on grounds they are not attorneys," Finan said.

NEW YORK (AP) — Highpriced issues led a weak technical rally in the stock market today.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up 6.41 at 852.00. Advances held a narrow 6 to 5 lead over declines in slow trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

Brokers said many investors remained preoccupied by lofty interest rates, inflation, and the political uncertainties surrounding the House inquiry into possible impeachment proceedings against President Nixon. International Telephone & Telegraph was the NYSE's most-active stock, down 1/4 at 20 in trading that included a 48,000-share block at that price.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was down .17 to 86.13.

Blue-chip issues showing strength included Eastman Kodak, up 2 at 106; Du Pont, ahead 2 1/4 at 176 1/2; and General Electric, up 1 1/4 at 49 1/2. Those three issues by themselves accounted for more than half the Dow's rise.

Madam Seeks Office; She 'Knows The People'

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — "I probably know people better than most of the people who are seeking public office," says Beverly Harrell. She claims she's the only active madam ever to seek elective office.

Mrs. Harrell, who owns the Cottontail "ranch," a legal brothel 156 miles north of Las Vegas, announced Monday she would seek the Democratic nomination for State Assembly in a three-county district in west central Nevada.

"I am ready for the legislature. I hope the legislature is ready for me," the petite redhead told a news conference.

She said "40 sounds good" for her age. She said she wanted to make clear her brothel was legal so people would not think she was "a shady character operating at the whim of paid-off public officials" but rather "a busi-nesswoman who has lived and paid taxes in Nevada for seven years."

Mrs. Harrell said she would like to see the question of legalizing prostitution in Nevada's two largest counties — where Las Vegas and Reno are located—placed on the November ballot. Current state law allows prostitution on a county option basis in all but Clark and Washoe counties.

"I feel that the people of the state of Nevada are very broad-minded people," Mrs. Harrell said. "I think prostitution is on the same par as gambling. I think it should be legal."

She said the main aim of her campaign would be to force the turnover of federal lands in Nevada to the state for dispersal to the public.

"I feel very strongly about this because I have battled with the Bureau of Land Management and I have lost," she said.

Mrs. Harrell lost a year-long battle to operate her brothel on federal land she had been leasing for $100 a year. The ranch—a cluster of trailers on a small piece of land—had been in business some time when a columnist wrote of the operation and the government evicted her.

Markets

NEW YORK (AP) — Highpriced issues led a weak technical rally in the stock market today.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up 6.41 at 852.00. Advances held a narrow 6 to 5 lead over declines in slow trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

Brokers said many investors remained preoccupied by lofty interest rates, inflation, and the political uncertainties surrounding the House inquiry into possible impeachment proceedings against President Nixon. International Telephone & Telegraph was the NYSE's most-active stock, down 1/4 at 20 in trading that included a 48,000-share block at that price.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was down .17 to 86.13.

Blue-chip issues showing strength included Eastman Kodak, up 2 at 106; Du Pont, ahead 2 1/4 at 176 1/2; and General Electric, up 1 1/4 at 49 1/2. Those three issues by themselves accounted for more than half the Dow's rise.

Madam Seeks Office; She 'Knows The People'

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — "I probably know people better than most of the people who are seeking public office," says Beverly Harrell. She claims she's the only active madam ever to seek elective office.

Mrs. Harrell, who owns the Cottontail "ranch," a legal brothel 156 miles north of Las Vegas, announced Monday she would seek the Democratic nomination for State Assembly in a three-county district in west central Nevada.

"I am ready for the legislature. I hope the legislature is ready for me," the petite redhead told a news conference. She said "40 sounds good" for her age.

She said she wanted to make clear her brothel was legal so people would not think she was "a shady character operating at the whim of paid-off public officials" but rather "a busi-nesswoman who has lived and paid taxes in Nevada for seven years."

Mrs. Harrell said she would like to see the question of legalizing prostitution in Nevada's two largest counties — where Las Vegas and Reno are located—placed on the November ballot. Current state law allows prostitution on a county option basis in all but Clark and Washoe counties.

"I feel that the people of the state of Nevada are very broad-minded people," Mrs. Harrell said. "I think prostitution is on the same par as gambling. I think it should be legal."

She said the main aim of her campaign would be to force the turnover of federal lands in Nevada to the state for dispersal to the public.

"I feel very strongly about this because I have battled with the Bureau of Land Management and I have lost," she said.

Mrs. Harrell lost a year-long battle to operate her brothel on federal land she had been leasing for $100 a year. The ranch—a cluster of trailers on a small piece of land—had been in business some time when a columnist wrote of the operation and the government evicted her.

Practical Intrusions

Free trade theories have been taking severe lumps in recent months, with the likelihood that heavier attacks are coming. Protectionist sentiment is rising in Congress for the good reason that major industries—led by the automakers—are going through difficult periods brought about by the abandonment of free trade policies by others.

The Arab oil boycott was a major abandonment of traditional trading policies, and one which producers of other essential commodities are threatening to emulate. If a pattern of political-economic blackmail among nations should develop, any thought of free trade would go out the window.

How easily that could happen was shown during the oil embargo, when nearly every Western European nation went after the best unilateral deal it could strike with the Arabs—no matter what. It is at the point of self-preservation that theories give way to practical considerations, and sometimes panic.

There are calls now, from the United Auto Workers among others, to clamp some kind of controls on auto imports into the United States. These calls will fall on sympathetic congressional ears. Congress is well aware of the beating Detroit is taking from the sudden gasoline squeeze.

The lawmakers also will be reminded that free trade has not been entirely a two-way street. Many countries already have higher tariff and quota barriers on American products than the U.S. does on theirs.

Little League Crisis

ON THE LINE
By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK — If President Nixon thinks he's having a hard time, what about Little League? What amounts to the polls are running against that fine boys baseball league, chartered by the Congress of the United States as a boys league, known for three decades and more as a boys league involving about 2,000,000 boys in 8,800 boys leagues in 31 nations.

Eighteen states of the U.S., following the nutty decision of the New Jersey Superior Court ruling that girls must be permitted to play on boys' teams, are row suing Little League, Inc., for the same so-called "rights."

The New Jersey decision could conceivably go to the U.S. Supreme Court because of its odd ramifications. While Rome and Washington burned, the historian of a century hence may write, there was a case in which an organization of boys baseball teams appealed a ruling forced by a Civil Liberties group and Women's Lib, which required that a team of boys must accept X-number of girls on their team or be ordered out of the Little League, a private organization.

conduct themselves. Many have also said they thought it was not right that male coaches and players be put in a position where they might have to "touch girls on their private parts." Wounded girls, that is.

Legal costs involved in fighting the Jersey precedent have become unbearable, Little League Chairman Peter J. McGovern, reports from League headquarters in Williamsport, Pa. He would like to see a stay from the Jersey ruling issued temporarily by some member of the Supreme Court. It would not be the first time the High Court has concerned itself with sports, i.e. its ruling that big league baseball is a sport, not an industry, and therefore is not subject to monopolistic rulings.

One of McGovern's advisers on the Little League Foundation—which has such members as James A. Farley, former New Jersey Governor William T. Cahill, Bob Hope, Dr. G. Herbert McCracken, Walter F. O'Malley, Sam Pryor, Bill Shea and Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer—suggested that the Little League case against girls' participation be submitted to Justice William O. Douglas. He was overruled. If the plea was made at all, the group agreed, it should be to Justice Whizzer White, who never had to play against a girl during his entire life as an All-American back at Colorado and All-Pro with the Pittsburgh Steelers.

Supreme Court Upsets Wiretaps

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court dealt a sharp setback to the Justice Department today by invalidating a number of anticrime wiretaps because federal officials failed to follow the law.

The decision could upset federal cases numbering in the hundreds, including organized crime and narcotics prosecutions.

The case turned on whether the Justice Department under former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell followed the demands of the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act in requesting wiretaps.

The court held that Mitchell did not follow the requirements of the act in a series of wiretap requests that were signed by his executive assistant.

The law specifies that either the attorney general himself or a specially-designated assistant attorney general approve wiretap requests.

The wiretaps requests in question are made to federal judges, who must give approval before the taps can be made. Justice Byron R. White, writing for an unanimous court, noted that the Nixon administration insisted that it should have wide latitude in delegating the attorney general's authority to request wiretaps because the federal law grants wide latitude among state officials in approving wiretap requests.

White said, however, "it is apparent that Congress desired to centralize and limit this authority where it was feasible to do so, a desire easily implemented in the federal establishment by confining the authority to approve wiretap applications to the attorney general or a designated assistant attorney general.

"To us, it appears wholly at odds with the scheme and the history of the act to construe (it) to permit the attorney general to delegate this authority at will, whether it be to his executive assistant or to any officer of the department other than an assistant attorney general," White said.

The wiretap applications in question were signed by Sol Linderbaum who was Mitchell's executive assistant.

In a companion case the court permitted the government to preserve the evidence gathered in a number of other questioned wiretaps.

New Navy Antimissile Gun Flops

WASHINGTON (AP) — A General Accounting Office report says the Navy's new Phalanx antimissile gun malfunctioned so badly in its first test earlier this year that it "threatened to sink" a California island and a friendly ship.

The report, released Sunday by Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., said the radar-controlled, self-firing gun "trapped, locked onto and declared as a threat" the U.S. Navy ship USS Hollister.

Also, the gun's electronic aiming system zeroed in on Santa Barbara Island, off the Southern California coast, confusing the island for a fast-moving target, according to the GAO report.

While the Phalanx is designed mainly as a "last ditch defense" against enemy missiles, it can also fire on planes and other ships, the GAO said. Aspin, a member of the House Armed Services Committee, said the initial tests cast serious doubt whether the Phalanx is worth any further funds "out of our already-bloated defense budget."

He added: "Certainly, we have no urgent requirements for an automatic gun that attacks islands and friendly ships."

The report indicated that the problem with the gun's electronic targeting system is mainly due to extraneous radar reflections off large objects nearby.

More Participation In Schools Urged

CELINA, Ohio (AP)—Citizens must be encouraged to participate in the direction of schools, State School Supt. Martin W. Essex told members of Parent-Teacher Associations over the weekend.

"All polls confirm that citizens feel they have been excluded from their schools," Essex said. "The strength of the American school emerged from the close citizen direction of it—from the one-room school to a decade or so ago."

And he added, "The imperativeness of bringing the parent close to the school is a continuing responsibility."

DAYTON, Ohio (AP)—The Episcopal Diocese of Southern Ohio wants to increase the number of black priests at white parishes over the next two years.

Speaking Of Your Health

by Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

My cousin had a serious accident when she was thrown from a horse. To save her life, her spleen was removed.

What replaces the function of such an important organ?

Dear Miss G. A. Iowa
Dear Miss A.:
The spleen is truly one of the most remarkable chemical factories in the body.

Every year scientific research yields more and more information about this amazing organ.

It plays an important role in the formation of red blood cells. Paradoxically, it is involved in the destruction of red blood cells that are old and have ceased to be useful.

Newer knowledge indicates the spleen is involved in building up body defenses against infection and in other factors of immunity.

When the spleen is removed, the bone marrow of the long bones of the body takes on the added burden of producing millions of red blood cells, white blood cells, platelets and other important substances in the blood.

The body has many such compensating devices.

for measuring the amount of alcohol in the body?

Mr. H. H. Vt.

Dear Mr. H.:
"Bag-breathing" and blood studies are very reliable in determining the alcoholic content of the blood.

Many states recognize this data as an indication of intoxication. It must be remembered that the tolerance for alcohol varies in people. Yet it is accepted that everyone with high or low tolerance has some loss of reflexes after drinking alcohol.

Undoubtedly, decreased reflexes, lack of concentration, and lessened judgment resulting from alcohol are responsible for the mass destruction of human lives on the roads.

In the air, too, it is known that alcohol can be responsible for major accidents. It is for this reason that commercial pilots never drink prior to a flight.

Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — With the business community seemingly determined to continue borrowing money no matter what the cost, the Federal Reserve Board is being forced into an almost unprecedented situation.

In theory, rising interest rates and a relatively smaller than usual growth in the money supply are supposed to discourage borrowing. But recent surveys show that business plans to spend much more than it did in 1973.

One corporate treasurer explained: "We don't like to pay high interest rates but it has been our experience over the past five years that if we don't borrow now we'll pay more tomorrow."

The Fed, therefore, is faced with a situation that grows more critical each day: Should it continue monetary restraint and risk economic chaos? Or should it relent?

After stating he will continue restraint, Arthur Burns, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, is being accused by some investment brokers and businessmen of financial brinkmanship.

Manown Kiser Jr., senior vice president of Paine Webber Jackson & Curtis, a large securities house, commented in the firm's newsletter: "Surely Dr. Burns does not want to cast the economy into the abyss of a liquidity crisis and an ensuing depression. It might cure inflation, but politically and socially, the system would not survive the fall."

The alleged brinkmanship, he said, involves the basic underpinnings of the American financial structure of equity, bond and money markets, and the various financial institutions and commercial banks.

"All are inter — and intra — related, entwined and inseparable," he commented. "If one were to crack, there would be reverberations throughout."

While feeling that the Federal Reserve will ease monetary policy and that interest rates will fall sharply, Chase Econometric Associates late in April felt it was important to consider the alternative.

If the Fed decides to continue to tighten monetary policy in an abortive attempt to reduce the rate of inflation too quickly, chaos would result, said the firm, which is part of Chase Manhattan Corp. It added:

"Under our credit crunch scenario, we would expect the failure of at least one large corporation issuing commercial paper and a resulting lack of liquidity in the entire nonbank commercial paper market."

Commercial paper, a negotiable promise to pay, is an important source of short-term capital for many corporations, as well as a source of income for companies with excess funds to lend.

Business loans outstanding at the big New York banks fell slightly in the week ended last Wednesday, but the amount, about $37 million, wasn't enough to convince observers that a trend to less demand was setting in.

If the decline continues for several weeks, however, economists believe it would indicate that Fed policy finally is forcing business to reconsider its spending plans.

New Process Makes Milk Digestible

KINGSTON, R.I. (AP) — Two University of Rhode Island researchers said today they have developed an inexpensive process that may make milk digestible for millions of persons who can't drink it.

Using an enzyme process, the researchers say they have changed lactose or milk sugar to two simple sugars which can be digested—glucose and galactose. An enzyme is a protein secreted by body cells or made artificially which induces chemical reaction in other substances.

"The milk is four times sweeter than the straight-from-the-cow product, but is otherwise unchanged and can be consumed directly, dried or used to make other milk-based food products," Dr. Arthur G. Rand, a professor of animal science and food and resource chemistry, said. "It's caloric value remains the same."

"People tend to prefer a certain degree of sweetness, and this enhances it," he added.

Rand said all babies are capable of handling lactose, unless they have an unusual congenital defect. But he said an intolerance develops during the preteen years for many persons, particularly those of Asian or African extract. By adulthood, a majority of nonCaucasians are unable to digest lactose easily, he added.

Other attempts have been made to remove the lactose, "but most of them have been expensive and altered the nutritive value of the milk by reducing such things as vitamins and minerals," Rand said. Other processes took too long or produced a taste that did not have wide appeal, he said.

The first fleet of motorized taxis in the United States made its debut in 1907.

Eighteen states of the U.S., following the nutty decision of the New Jersey Superior Court ruling that girls must be permitted to play on boys' teams, are now suing Little League, Inc., for the same so-called "rights."

The New Jersey decision could conceivably go to the U.S. Supreme Court because of its odd ramifications. While Rome and Washington burned, the historian of a century hence may write, there was a case in which an organization of boys baseball teams appealed a ruling forced by a Civil Liberties group and Women's Lib, which required that a team of boys must accept X-number of girls on their team or be ordered out of the Little League, a private organization.

Overlooked where certain problems of no prime interest to the victorious side: 1) Those who have pushed the girls into Little League baseball wouldn't know the difference between a fungo bat and a pitch-out; 2) they haven't any business meddling in a boys' game; 3) they are saying, in effect, "We don't care how many girls are busted up playing hardball with tough competitive young boys," and 4) they are warning Bowie Kuhn and Pete Rozelle to admit ladies to professional baseball and football, or shut down their leagues.

The kooky Jersey ruling would wipe out the efforts of Little League to form girls' leagues that would use a soft ball, eliminate sliding into bases, have a slightly smaller field, and require the girl catchers to wear breast protectors. The court ruled against Little League's "equal but separate rights," against its proposal to stage an annual world series of girls' baseball, and it came out strong for an integration that violates Little League's Congressional charter. The charter calls it a boys' league and gives it Congressional blessing — like the Star-Spangled Banner.

There are other complications, as outlined soberly by the good gray New York Times:

"The reaction of most of the nearly 2,000 teams in New Jersey that have some 115,000 boys has been to suspend play, rather than include girls. Emotions have been running high among supporters of the Little League. Many complain that it is 'un-American' for the state to tell volunteers (ed. note: sponsors of teams, coaches, managers, etc.) how to conduct themselves. Many have also said they thought it was not right that male coaches and players be put in a position where they might have to 'touch girls on their private parts.' Wounded girls, that is.

New Navy Antimissile Gun Flops

WASHINGTON (AP) — A General Accounting Office report says the Navy's new Phalanx antimissile gun malfunctioned so badly in its first test earlier this year that it "threatened to sink" a California island and a friendly ship.

The report, released Sunday by Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., said the radar-controlled, self-firing gun "trapped, locked onto and declared as a threat" the U.S. Navy ship USS Hollister.

Also, the gun's electronic aiming system zeroed in on Santa Barbara Island, off the Southern California coast, confusing the island for a fast-moving target, according to the GAO report.

While the Phalanx is designed mainly as a "last ditch defense" against enemy missiles, it can also fire on planes and other ships, the GAO said. Aspin, a member of the House Armed Services Committee, said the initial tests cast serious doubt whether the Phalanx is worth any further funds "out of our already-bloated defense budget."

He added: "Certainly, we have no urgent requirements for an automatic gun that attacks islands and friendly ships."

The report indicated that the problem with the gun's electronic targeting system is mainly due to extraneous radar reflections off large objects nearby.

More Participation In Schools Urged

CELINA, Ohio (AP) — Citizens must be encouraged to participate in the direction of schools, State School Supt. Martin W. Essex told members of Parent-Teacher Associations over the weekend.

"All polls confirm that citizens feel they have been excluded from their schools," Essex said. "The strength of the American school emerged from the close citizen direction of it—from the one-room school to a decade or so ago."

And he added, "The imperativeness of bringing the parent close to the school is being recognized."

Urge Black Priests For White Parishes

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — The Episcopal Diocese of Southern Ohio wants to increase the number of black priests at white parishes over the next two years.

The delegates and clergy at the diocese's 100th annual meeting over the weekend adopted a resolution calling for parishes to add three black priests by the end of 1975 and three more by June 1976.

A church spokesman said black priests are now at parishes that are predominantly black. He added, "I don't know of any that are at white parishes."

Speaking Of Your Health

by Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

My cousin had a serious accident when she was thrown from a horse. To save her life, her spleen was removed. What replaces the function of such an important organ?

Miss G. A. Iowa

Dear Miss A.:

The spleen is truly one of the most remarkable chemical factories in the body.

Every year scientific research yields more and more information about this amazing organ.

It plays an important role in the formation of red blood cells. Paradoxically, it is involved in the destruction of red blood cells that are old and have ceased to be useful.

Newer knowledge indicates the spleen is involved in building up body defenses against infection and in other factors of immunity.

When the spleen is removed, the bone marrow of the long bones of the body takes on the added burden of producing millions of red blood cells, white blood cells, platelets and other important substances in the blood.

The body has many such compensating devices.

Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — With the business community seemingly determined to continue borrowing money no matter what the cost, the Federal Reserve Board is being forced into an almost unprecedented situation.

In theory, rising interest rates and a relatively smaller than usual growth in the money supply are supposed to discourage borrowing. But recent surveys show that business plans to spend much more than it did in 1973.

One corporate treasurer explained: "We don't like to pay high interest rates but it has been our experience over the past five years that if we don't borrow now we'll pay more tomorrow."

The Fed, therefore, is faced with a situation that grows more critical each day: Should it continue monetary restraint and risk economic chaos? Or should it relent?

After stating he will continue restraint, Arthur Burns, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, is being accused by some investment brokers and businessmen of financial brinkmanship.

Manown Kiser Jr., senior vice president of Paine Webber Jackson & Curtis, a large securities house, commented in the firm's newsletter:

"Surely Dr. Burns does not want to cast the economy into the abyss of a liquidity crisis and an ensuing depression. It might cure inflation, but politically and socially, the system would not survive the fall."

The alleged brinkmanship, he said, involves the basic underpinnings of the American financial structure of equity, bond and money markets, and the various financial institutions and commercial banks.

"All are inter — and intra — related, entwined and inseparable," he commented. "If one were to crack, there would be reverberations throughout."

While feeling that the Federal Reserve will ease monetary policy and that interest rates will fall sharply, Chase Econometric Associates late in April felt it was important to consider the alternative.

If the Fed decides to continue to tighten monetary policy in an abortive attempt to reduce the rate of inflation too quickly, chaos would result, said the firm, which is part of Chase Manhattan Corp. It added:

"Under our credit crunch scenario, we would expect the failure of at least one large corporation issuing commercial paper and a resulting lack of liquidity in the entire nonbank commercial paper market."

Mr. H. H. Vt.

Dear Mr. H.:

"Bag-breathing" and blood studies are very reliable in determining the alcoholic content of the blood.

Many states recognize this data as an indication of intoxication. It must be remembered that the tolerance for alcohol varies in people. Yet it is accepted that everyone with high or low tolerance has some loss of reflexes after drinking alcohol.

Undoubtedly, decreased reflexes, lack of concentration, and lessened judgment resulting from alcohol are responsible for the mass destruction of human lives on the roads.

In the air, too, it is known that alcohol can be responsible for major accidents. It is for this reason that commercial pilots never drink prior to a flight.

New Process Makes Milk Digestible

KINGSTON, R.I. (AP) — Two University of Rhode Island researchers said today they have developed an inexpensive process that may make milk digestible for millions of persons who can't drink it.

Using an enzyme process, the researchers say they have changed lactose or milk sugar to two simple sugars which can be digested—glucose and galactose. An enzyme is a protein secreted by body cells or made artificially which induces chemical reaction in other substances.

"The milk is four times sweeter than the straight-from-the-cow product, but is otherwise unchanged and can be consumed directly, dried or used to make other milk-based food products," Dr. Arthur G. Rand, a professor of animal science and food and resource chemistry, said. "Its caloric value remains the same."

"People tend to prefer a certain degree of sweetness, and this enhances it," he added.

Rand said all babies are capable of handling lactose, unless they have an unusual congenital defect. But he said an intolerance develops during the preteen years for many persons, particularly those of Asian or African extract. By adulthood, a majority of nonCaucasians are unable to digest lactose easily, he added.

Other attempts have been made to remove the lactose, "but most of them have been expensive and altered the nutritive value of the milk by reducing such things as vitamins and minerals," Rand said. Other processes took too long or produced a taste that did not have wide appeal, he said.

SOCIOLOGY CLASS—Mrs. Dorothy Beavers's sociology class just completed a course on death. As the class realized toward the end of their study, death is one of the few universal characteristics of mankind. Their study included guest speakers from the careers of medicine, law, mortuary science, and insurance.

Sociology Class Studies Death

By JOYCE RITCHIE And ESTILL SALLYERS

During the past few weeks the sociology class has been studying a course on "Death." Included in their studies were a visit to a cemetery and Bastian's Funeral Home, in Ashville, and many guest speakers. Among the many speakers were: Dr. Ray Carroll, Pickaway County Coroner; Dr. Myers, M.D.; C. W. Glitt, Insurance Salesman; the Rev. Kenneth Beale, U.M.E. Minister; Roger Bennington, Circleville Lawyer; Mrs. Janigan, Pickaway County Psychologist; Warren Bastian, Ashville Funeral Director; and Mr. Mehrley, W.W. II veteran.

We asked some people who went to Bastian's Funeral Home what they thought of the trip and their reactions were:

Elaine Pfeiffer, "I enjoyed the field trip to Bastian's. It was interesting to see the baby coffins and the prices of different caskets."

Marylee Spohn, "I have really learned a lot about the subject, and I think I can face death more openly now."

"This unit was totally different, but I found it interesting. The fact that death is universal, yet at the same time mysterious, points up one of the problems with this subject. The students did develop a more realistic and objective view toward it by having experiences in evaluating a variety of viewpoints," said Mrs. Beavers, the class instructor.

She went on to say, "At first there was a certain fear, but after the course they could face it realistically. They learned about preparing wills, terminal illnesses, insurance, preparing the body, and how to accept grief."

TV Starts Tennis Club

By ROBERTA LALIK

If you've seen some students after school on the tennis court, you've seen our tennis team. The instructor for this club is Mrs. Abigail Robinson. She started the club about a month ago and the kids really like it. She enjoys it, too.

Mrs. Robinson said, "Tennis has a lot to do with school spirit. It should be something for the students who don't run track. It will carry throughout life."

"In the beginning, 56 signed up but now there are about 30 solid ones still playing." She says they don't have the background they should have. "They may start in the fall next year," she said. She expects to play other teams next year and hopefully make a varsity squad out of it by then. Mrs. Robinson thinks it is good exercise and loosens up your muscles.

Mrs. Robinson said when it started she explained what a tennis court looked like, how to keep score, the different hand grips, how to serve, and exercise. The she turned them loose and let them play. They have set up games, and Saturday, there will be a tournament at Teays Valley starting at 10 a.m. and lasting until around 3 p.m. So, come out and see them in action.

Felicity Police Chief Ordered Reinstated

FELICITY, Ohio (AP)—Harry A. Foy Sr. has been ordered reinstated as chief of police at Felicity by the First Ohio District Court of Appeals.

A lower court earlier ruled the Felicity Village Council had no reason to dismiss Foy, but did not order him reinstated.

The appellate court said Foy must be reinstated although a new chief has been appointed by Felicity.

Search Widens For 2 Escapees

NASHVILLE (AP) — A massive search for three state prison escapees convicted of killing a Nashville policeman continues today with help from the FBI.

FBI agents joined the search for the trio Monday after U.S. Magistrate Kent Sandridge II issued an unlawful flight warrant for the three. Also involved in the search are agents of the Tennessee Bureau of Criminal Identification and Nashville police officers.

Three men were arrested Monday in Chattanooga and authorities held them for questioning in connection with the escape, but comparisons of photographs showed that they were not the escapees.

Chattanooga police said the three were picked up originally because they were acting suspiciously.

The fugitives, William Garvin Allen, 29, of Old Hickory, Stephen Parker, 30, and Ralph Canady, 33, both of Cincinnati, escaped Sunday afternoon wearing civilian clothes smuggled into the prison by visitors.

They were convicted of the January, 1968, slaying of Nashville patrolman Charles Wayne Thomasson. They are also charged with killing patrolman Thomas Johnson, but they have not stood trial on that charge yet.

Each of the three was serving a 99-year sentence in Thomasson's death. The two officers were shot the night of Jan. 16 on a dead end street in Nashville after Johnson had halted the occupants of a car for questioning about forged money orders.

Identify Girl's Body Found In Trailer

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)— Police have identified the body of a teen-age girl found Monday in an abandoned truck trailer as Julie Egbers, 16, of Cincinnati.

Police said a quantity of pills were found near the body. An autopsy was ordered to determine the cause of death.

5 Man Pleads Guilty In Extortion Attempt

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)—A Cincinnati man, surprised March 21, when a bank teller delivering extortion money turned out to be a lady FBI agent, pleaded guilty Monday in U.S. District Court to attempted extortion.

James Lee Campbell, 39, was sentenced to five years in a federal penitentiary.

The FBI said Campbell telephoned the Central Trust bank downtown and told officials to deliver $10,000 to a street corner because the family of a bank official was being held by cohorts.

Ask the Lindsay Lady

Q. What do I do? My husband doesn't like my coffee.

A. Just for review, the coffee maker's pledge: "A clean pot, fresh cold water from the tap, accurate measurements." Now, the next question—are you using hard or soft water? It's surprising how soft water, with the minerals removed, can enhance the taste of coffee. Likewise many other water-based beverages. A small price to pay to keep a husband happy.

Q. How much soap is needed for washing clothes in soft water?

A. Here's where the savings really show! If with hard water you use one full cup of soap or detergent per washer load, with soft water you can cut down to a scant coffee measure full. It isn't easy to break old soap habits at first, but experience will show that this small amount does it in most cases. Soft water not only pays its own way by cutting soap costs, but it leaves clothes soft, fluffy and comfortable—because they're free of soap curd. And, with less pollution going down the drain, think what you're doing for ecology!

Q. Does it matter how often I shampoo my hair each week?

A. Not if the conditions are right. If you wash and rinse your hair in soft water, you can shampoo daily if you like—and safely. The recommended treatment is soft water and a mild non-alcoholic soap shampoo which won't dry out the hair and scalp. If you pay to have your hair done, be sure the beautician is using softened water.

This year's Girls' State representatives from Teays Valley include Cindy Beattie, Karen Green, Julie Pabst, and alternate, Susie Glitt. Boys' State participants are Dave Warner, Nolan Hines, Keith Pettibone, and David Jones.

Representatives to Girls' and Boys' State are chosen only if they meet all the necessary qualifications. First, only junior members of the school are accepted. The participants must have shown a strong interest in government, history, and civics during their previous years of high school. They must have a good personality, self-reliance and demonstrate good sportsmanship.

Girls' and Boys' State is not a vacation for the participants. The boys will check in June 13, at Ashland State College, Ashland, and will stay until June 21. The Girls' States will attend their weekly seminar at Capital University in Columbus. This week is filled with a variety of activities including setting up a city government and electing officials to these posts. The week is climaxed by electing one of the participants to the office of governor.

Kathy Hoffman, last year's representatives to Girls' State from Teays Valley High School, stated, "The main thing about Girls' State is learning about city, county, and state government of Ohio. By forming our own government and electing our own officials, we were able to understand the political process more easily." While Kathy was at Girls' State, she was elected president of Shilley City School Board. According to Kathy, "My main job as president of the school board was developing a school which suited all the needs of the people of the city."

Karl Snyder, one of last year's Boys' State participants said, "The good thing is that everyone wants to be there so they all work together. Things move at a tremendous pace. The only bad thing was that there were no girls there. Overall I feel that Boys' State is a great experience. One gets a first-hand view of the political process, not only do you get to vote but also run and serve in an office. You get the advantage of living and trading ideas with students from all over the state of Ohio."

Summer Typing Class Offered

A six-weeks' personal typing class will be offered at Teays Valley High School this summer. The class will be 8 to 10 a.m. Mondays through Fridays, beginning June 17, and ending July 26. Adults, as well as students, may enroll.

The class will be taught by Mrs. Helen Cookson. The cost of the course is $25.

Anyone who is interested in attending or who has questions concerning the class can call the school 983-3121.

Delaware Women's Club Host Old Trails DAC

The Delaware City Women's Club, Delaware, Ohio was the interesting setting for the May 8th luncheon meeting of Old Trails Chapter, DAC. Making the arrangements were Mrs. William Hahnert and Mrs. Myron D. Neasse of that city, Miss Lela Brookshire of Marion and Mrs. Joseph M. Vercoe of Blacklick.

Fairfield Countians in attendance were most gratified to hear that their county has more covered bridges than any other county in the state and that Ohio ranks second in number with only Pennsylvania having more nationally. This information was imparted by Mrs. Robert Neasse of Marysville, guest speaker, who had as her subject "Covered Bridges — Then and Now."

Mrs. Neasse continued "The first known covered bridges were built in China Centuries ago. They were also used in Switzerland at an early date. In this country they first were built in heavily wooded sections of Vermont about 1785. It is estimated that approximately 10,000 have been built since that time with only 1500 remaining today. Ohio presently has about 200 with 170 of these actually carrying traffic while 30 are being preserved in parks, fairgrounds and on private property."

The shortest covered bridge still in existence measures 19 feet while the longest has a span of 200 feet. The famous Y bridge in Zanesville was completely covered from 1832 to 1901, members were invormed. The oft heard question of why bridges were covered was settled by the speaker. The wood planking would last only about 15 years if exposed to the elements, but if protected by roofing and siding some have been known to last a century. The invention of the steam locomotive spelled the doom of the wooden covered bridge for it took the strength of steel to carry its great weight, Mrs. Neasse concluded.

Mrs. Martin W. Cromley, Regent, presided for the business session. Mrs. Harry Emrick reported on National Assembly held in Washington D.C. April 9 and 10, while Mrs. Samuel Fuller briefed members on the activities of State Assembly held recently in Columbus.

Mrs. Henry D. Watson, Chaplain, assisted by Mrs. Myron Neasse and Mrs. H. Franklin Brink, conducted impressive memorial services for deceased members Mrs. Clarence W. Rowles, Mrs. C. K. Cunningham Jr., Mrs. Audley Cassidy and Mrs. Clarence McAbee.

Mrs. Charles H. Donaldson of Lancaster was welcomed as a new member. Introduced as guests were Miss Eliza Plum, Delaware; Miss Dorothy Darraugh, Mrs. C. Gray Hussey and Mrs. James Budden, all of Columbus.

Local members include Mrs. L. Hewitt Cromley, Mrs. Martin W. Cromley, Mrs. T. Leroy Cromley, Mrs. J. Leroy Frazier, Mrs. Carl Steinhauer.

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren

Let Dad Have His Fun

DEAR ABBY: I have a most unusual father. He's close to 80, but looks 60, and he knows it. He never misses an opportunity to tell his age because everyone raves about how "young" he looks.

Whenever Dad goes to a wedding or a party where there's music he gets carried away and thinks he's Fred Astaire. Everyone assumes he's tipsy, but all he drinks is soda pop.

He's a handsome man and a good dancer, but not good enough to put on a solo performance, which he always does. Mom died five years ago, and Dad remarried and his wife can't control him worth a hoot.

My problem: My son is being married soon. Should I take Dad aside and ask him to refrain from making a donkey of himself at the wedding reception? Or should I let him do his usual act and try to remain calm? All our friends and relatives know what a show-off he is but the bride's family has never seen him in action.

I love my father, but when he's on, I blush like crazy, a smile freezes on my face, and I clench my teeth until my jaws ache. What to do?

HIS DAUGHTER

DEAR DAUGHTER: An 80 year old man who looks like he's 60 and thinks he's Fred Astaire (and on soda pop yet) is entitled to have a little fun. Let Dad have a good time. And-Thank heavens you're not serving chicken soup to him in a rest home every day.

DEAR ABBY: I would like a wrestling partner. Someone who would like to wrestle for fun and exercise. I am not looking to be a champion.

I am 66 years old, in good health, and would like to stay that way as long as possible. I've never wrestled but that type of exercise appeals to me. Where should I look?

WANTS TO WRESTLE

DEAR WANTS: Go to the YMCA (if you're looking for a male partner, otherwise, go to the YWCA) and ask if there is a wrestler who would like to work out with you. If there is, you won't have to twist his arm.

DEAR ABBY: Here is the problem that has our whole family divided: Shirley is married to Robert. Shirley's sister is married to Charles. What are Robert and Charles to each other? I say they are brothers-in-law. Someone in the family says Charles and Robert are NOT related at all.

If that is true, I cannot understand why Robert's children call Charles "Uncle," and Charles' children call Robert "Uncle."

ALL IN THE FAMILY

Please rush your answer as this problem has thrown a wet blanket over our family reunions for years.

Warnke Attacks Pentagon Budget

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Asst. Secretary of Defense Paul C. Warnke said today the Nixon administration's military budget request for the coming fiscal year is more than 15 per cent above this year's defense appropriation and ought to be cut by $11 billion.

The proposed Pentagon budget of $85.8 billion "involves waste, continuance of unwise past programs and unsound efforts at pump-priming" to help head off a recession with defense spending, Warnke said.

He released a report prepared by a panel he chaired of onetime government officials with experience in national security matters. The study was sponsored by the Project on Budget Priorities.

Warnke Attacks Pentagon Budget

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Asst. Secretary of Defense Paul C. Warnke said today the Nixon administration's military budget request for the coming fiscal year is more than 15 per cent above this year's defense appropriation and ought to be cut by $11 billion.

The proposed Pentagon budget of $85.8 billion "involves waste, continuance of unwise past programs and unsound efforts at pump-priming" to help head off a recession with defense spending, Warnke said.

He released a report prepared by a panel he chaired of onetime government officials with experience in national security matters. The study was sponsored by the Project on Budget Priorities.

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren

Let Dad Have His Fun

DEAR ABBY: I have a most unusual father. He's close to 80, but looks 60, and he knows it. He never misses an opportunity to tell his age because everyone raves about how "young" he looks.

Whenever Dad goes to a wedding or a party where there's music he gets carried away and thinks he's Fred Astaire. Everyone assumes he's tipsy, but all he drinks is soda pop.

He's a handsome man and a good dancer, but not good enough to put on a solo performance, which he always does. Mom died five years ago, and Dad remarried and his wife can't control him worth a hoot.

My problem: My son is being married soon. Should I take Dad aside and ask him to refrain from making a donkey of himself at the wedding reception? Or should I let him do his usual act and try to remain calm? All our friends and relatives know what a show-off he is but the bride's family has never seen him in action.

I love my father, but when he's on, I blush like crazy, a smile freezes on my face, and I clench my teeth until my jaws ache. What to do?

HIS DAUGHTER

DEAR DAUGHTER: An 80 year old man who looks like he's 60 and thinks he's Fred Astaire (and on soda pop yet) is entitled to have a little fun. Let Dad have a good time. And thank heavens you're not serving chicken soup to him in a rest home every day.

DEAR ABBY: I would like a wrestling partner. Someone who would like to wrestle for fun and exercise. I am not looking to be a champion.

I am 66 years old, in good health, and would like to stay that way as long as possible. I've never wrestled but that type of exercise appeals to me. Where should I look?

WANTS TO WRESTLE

DEAR WANTS: Go to the YMCA (if you're looking for a male partner, otherwise, go to the YWCA) and ask if there is a wrestler who would like to work out with you. If there is, you won't have to twist his arm.

DEAR ABBY: Here is the problem that has our whole family divided: Shirley is married to Robert. Shirley's sister is married to Charles. What are Robert and Charles to each other? I say they are brothers-in-law. Someone in the family says Charles and Robert are NOT related at all.

If that is true, I cannot understand why Robert's children call Charles "Uncle," and Charles' children call Robert "Uncle."

Please rush your answer as this problem has thrown a wet blanket over our family reunions for years.

Melvin's restful night at a motel came to a jarring end when he looked out the window in the morning. His car, which he had parked just outside the room, had disappeared. In fact, he never saw it again.

In due course, he tried to collect reimbursement from the management of the motel.

"I was their guest," he argued in a court hearing, "and my car was on their premises. Therefore, they are legally liable for the loss."

However, the court tossed out Melvin's claim. The court said his argument did not stand up because he had never turned over possession of the car to the management. He had parked the car himself and kept the keys in his pocket.

It is true that motels—and hotels as well—bear a substantial responsibility for the property of their guests. This rule dates all the way back to the Middle Ages in England, when inns were considered a kind of safety zone for the travelling public.

But the rule does not go into effect until the property has been transferred to the possession of the management. In the case of automobiles, possession is ordinarily transferred when the guest surrenders his keys to a company employee.

The exact moment of transfer may become crucial. One woman left her car at the entrance to a hotel and went in to register. When the bellboy asked her for the keys, she replied that she had left them in the ignition.

Shortly afterward, a thief slipped into the car and made off with it.

Had the woman delivered possession of the car to the hotel management, making it responsible for her loss?

A court said yes, even though the keys had never been physically handed over to the bellboy. The court said the woman's words had given him the right to take possession of the car—and along with the right went the responsibility.

Luken Studies Transcripts On Hush Money

WASHINGTON (AP) — There is evidence in the edited Nixon transcripts that tends to show the President authorized the payment of hush money to the Watergate burglars, says Ohio's newest representative in Congress.

Thomas A. Luken said the transcripts also disclose that the President indicated he would utilize the Justice Department and the FBI to prosecute his political enemies.

In addition, the White House transcripts do not support the President's claim that he had ordered a complete Watergate investigation, Luken said in an interview.

While Nixon, in one conversation, did say offering executive clemency to the burglars would be wrong, "no where did he allude to it being morally wrong," Luken said, adding:

"The transcripts do not show any particular moral consciousness on the part of the President at all."

However, it is in the President's favor that the transcripts do not show Nixon had any prior knowledge of the burglary or authorized it, Luken says. "This would tend to be helpful to a certain extent," the congressman said.

Like most of his Capitol Hill colleagues, Luken said he intends to wait until the House Judiciary Committee has reported before disclosing how he would vote on any possible impeachment resolution.

He said applying the "best evidence" rule means that the actual tapes and not just edited transcripts should be turned over to the committee.

Name Game Dead In Ohio Politics?

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Observers of Ohio's political scene are optimistic that the so-called name game that let obscure newcomers win important statewide election races finally is ended.

Gov. John J. Gilligan and state Democratic Chairman William A. Lavelle credit their party's new endorsement procedure for the defeat of such politically inexperienced candidates as John F. Kennedy of Cleveland and J. W. Brown of Reynoldsburg.

Kennedy, who won the Democratic nomination for secretary of state in 1970, lost May 7 to state Sen. Tony P. Hall of Dayton, the endorsed Democrat with several years legislative experience behind him.

The same was true in the Democratic race for lieutenant governor, won by state Rep. Richard F. Celeste of Lakewood, the endorsed candidate among a field of nine.

J. W. Brown of Reynoldsburg, an attorney who practices in Columbus, ran against Celeste and had party leaders worried because of his good showing in pre-election polls. At one point Celeste termed him the front-runner.

Lavelle defended the state party's decision to endorse candidates "not as an attempt to defeat anyone" but to see that candidate records and experience got across to the voters.

The organization spent more than $200,000 on its endorsed slate, most of it going to Celeste and Hall.

In addition to J. W. Brown in the lieutenant governor's race, William Brown, a newcomer from Wintersville, Ohio, threw his hat into the ring for secretary of state and finished second behind Hall—232,596 to 215,690—in the final unofficial count.

Kennedy was third with 182,537.

Another familiar name among Republicans—O'Neill—was offered to Democrats in the lieutenant governor's race. William O'Neill, youthful Columbus public relations man in politics for the first time, polled 125,227 votes and finished fourth behind Celeste, Sen. Anthony O. Calabrese of Cleveland and J. W. Brown.

The name game wasn't really tested among Republicans in the primary, old timers such as Secretary of State Ted W. Brown and Lt. Gov. John W. Brown will be on the general election ballot again this fall.

Their credentials as vote-getters are well established, however.

Consensus endorsements by a GOP screening committee apparently discouraged some potential candidates early this year and the Republicans wound up with two new faces on their statewide ticket—Cleveland Mayor Ralph Perk for U.S. Senate and Prosecutor George C. Smith of Franklin County for attorney general.

Voters had a choice between two big GOP names in the primary race for state auditor with former Rep. Roger Tracy Jr. of Columbus outdistancing Thomas Cloud of Dayton.

Tracy is the son and grandson of former auditors. Cloud has the name, but is not related to the immediate past auditor, Roger Cloud.

Call For Lower Prices For Bread

WASHINGTON (AP) — The fall of wheat prices by 40.3 per cent since early January has been prompting calls for bakers and supermarkets to lower their prices.

The bakers, back in January, were calling for limited export controls on wheat, predicting soaring prices this spring and then a bare granary before the bumper winter crop came in.

Neither controls nor higher prices nor a complete disappearance occurred, although stocks are down to the lowest levels in 22 years.

The bakers' critics — Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz, several congressmen and various wheat-interest organizations — now are taking their turns in the spotlight in telling the bakers to apply their economics to themselves and cut their prices.

However, the latest USDA statistics show that, as usual, "the villain theory" is an oversimplification of reality in seeking to pinpoint the causes of prices.

For example, USDA market-basket figures for March show the farm value of wheat in a one-pound loaf of white bread fell 11.6 per cent from February at the same time as the retail price went up 4.6 per cent and the middlemen's margin rose 10.5 per cent.

But, compared with three months before, the margin went up 6.1 per cent, the retail price went up 6.6 per cent and the farm value went up 8.9 per cent.

And again, compared with March 1973, the margin is again the lowest percentage increase of the three, with a 25.4 per cent boost at the same time that the wheat-value was up 84.8 per cent and the retail price was up 33.9 per cent.

The market-basket compilers also have just finished the first comprehensive USDA study in a decade of the mark-ups, costs and profits of all sectors of the marketing chain for 19 major food items.

Its bread section showed that, for all of 1973, the farm value of the wheat in that pound loaf — which is much less common than the 1½-pound loaf — rose by 45 per cent, or 1.7 cents.

The retailer's 5.4-cent margin was 0.8 per cent greater than in 1972. The baker's margin rose about 25 per cent to 15.9 cents. The miller's margin rose 67 per cent to a penny.

Profits in lower-priced 1972 were 0.53 cents a loaf for the grocer, 0.6 cents for the miller, 0.9 cents for the baker.

And while farmers' prices are falling to close the gap between higher revenues and higher costs, middlemen presumably feel the same inflationary pinch in fuel, transportation and especially the labor costs which account for 50 to 67 per cent of the mark-ups of all food items, the study showed.

Hero Worship Shifts With Age

SEATTLE (AP)—A recent survey of 100 pupils in Seattle and Everett schools showed apparent differences in hero worship.

A class of Seattle fifth graders most admired athletes, movie and TV stars.

But a high school freshman said, "How can you admire anyone if you only see them on TV? You have to be able to talk with them and question them."

One teen-ager said "Maybe people just don't need heroes anymore."

Bank Card Use Increased

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans used bank cards more than 632 million times in 1973 to charge nearly $14 billion.

This represents a jump of more than $3.4 billion over 1972 when total dollar volume for purchases and cash advances amounted to less than $10.5 billion, the American Bankers Assn. reports.

Retail sales volume for 1973 climbed to more than $12 billion, an increase of 34.6 per cent over 1972 figures. Cash advance volume increased 31.3 per cent to total more than $1.4 billion at the end of 1973.

Students Pave Way For Teacher's Foreign Trip

CORDIA, Ky. (AP) — Mrs. Ruby Amburgey, who has been planning her "dream trip" to England for nearly 20 years, will be going in July, thanks to two years of conniving by her high school English students.

Mrs. Amburgey has dreamed of visiting the home of her favorite authors—Shakespeare, Lord Tennyson, Wordsworth and Robert Browning—since 1956, when, as a teacher at the two-room Bearville School in Knott County she began saving for the trip. Since 1964 she has taught English to all four grades at Cordia High School.

But even more than that, she has wanted to pay a visit to St. Paul's Cathedral in London, to see a list of American servicemen killed in action during World War II. The list includes the name of her late husband, Arnold Amburgey, killed in France in 1944. Fate denied her the trip, however.

Shortly after she began teaching, her father became paralyzed from a tumor on his spine, her mother went blind from glaucoma, and her sister-in-law died and left Mrs. Amburgey with two young girls to raise.

Her father died last year and her two nieces now are finishing high school. She still cares for her mother.

But this week her dream came true. The 11 students in the senior class at Cordia presented Mrs. Amburgey with a check for $600. It was the result of two years of cake sales, mini-carnivals and profits from the school newspaper.

The two-year, money-raising effort was plotted in secret with the cooperation of Cordia's principal, Randall Smith.

The $600 check—which covers all expenses and spending money for a two-week tour of England—was presented to Mrs. Amburgey at a "class day" celebration Thursday night. It also happened to be Mrs. Amburgey's 53rd birthday.

She said, "I tried to speak, but I couldn't. I cried."

The Present Is Great . . . BUT How About Their Future?

Nobody knows what the future may hold. But you can help your children now. Start Savings Accounts for them. Teach the saving habit. They'll thank you for it someday.

Young Nixon Workers Disillusioned By Watergate

WASHINGTON (AP) — Five years ago, dozens of young people flocked to the White House to serve President Nixon. They had supped on the headlines of the 1968 campaign and were full of energy, ambition, ideas and ideals.

It had been, as one of them put it, "an extraordinary vantage point," a chance to be involved in the highest levels of government, a tremendous career boost, an ego trip beyond their wildest dreams.

Today most have departed, their rose-colored vision shattered or shredding at the seams. And they are bewildered, saddened, betrayed and confused by the complexities surrounding the Watergate scandal.

And, with the release of the transcripts, it is soul searching time again, more whats and whys and hows.

"You got so carried away in that place with a feeling of moral righteousness that it's understandable some thought what they were doing was good for the country," said one disillusioned former Nixon aide. "I found myself saying so many times, the bureaucracy isn't going to help these people. I'm going to help them with the power of the White House. But it was illegal. Where do you draw the line?"

"If you did it by the rules and regulations, you'd be there 25 years. We didn't have that time. So sometimes you'd fudge and say, 'The President wants this done.'"

Even so, the aide and most of his departed colleagues do not agree with Gordon Strachan, the tall, sad-eyed young man who fought tears as he told the Senate Watergate committee last summer that based on his experience at the White House, he had this advice for young people interested in government service: "Stay away."

The White House often pointed out that almost one-third of the President's staff was 30 or under. In 1969 a reporter interviewed some of 30 White House aides with the title of staff assistant, deputy secretary or research assistant. Today, only about a half dozen remain.

John R. Price, a former executive secretary of the Urban Affairs Council and special assistant to the President, left the administration in 1971. Price, now 35 and a vice president of Manufacturers Trust Co. in New York, was interviewed after reading the edited transcripts of Nixon's Watergate conversations.

"It's very depressing there was not more leadership shown," he said. "The only things that came out is the instinct for survival ..."

"The supreme irony of the Nixon years was brought home to me by a memorandum (Daniel P.) Moynihan wrote to Nixon just before he was inaugurated. The gist of it was that it was Nixon's task to restore confidence and respect to the office of the presidency and American institutions."

Then Price added: "It is time for the President to step aside in favor of Vice President Ford."

Of the dozen former Nixon staffers interviewed, all between the ages of 28 and 35, most said they left the White House with mixed emotions: proud of having worked for the president of the United States, sickened to see so many of their colleagues facing indictments, court trials and jail, and relieved not to have been sucked into the whirlpool themselves.

Lee W. Huebner, a former Nixon speechwriter, offered these reflections on his five years in the White House: "When I first came to Washington, it was a great, glittering, glamorous and exciting place. When I left, it was sad and depressing."

"Everyone who remembers what it might have been is saddened it hasn't turned out the way we wanted it to."

Huebner, 33, now working for the Whitney Communications Corp. in New York, said he finds it hard to talk about his feeling on working for the Nixon White House.

The transcripts of the Watergate conversations are, in Huebner's view, "one of the most depressing things I've read. People still have questions."

But of his experience in the White House, Huebner insisted: "It is an extraordinary vantage point. I feel lucky to have had the opportunity. I met a lot of fine people there. I learned a lot."

He smiled at the memory, then shook his head. He was disappointed, he said, that Nixon didn't take a more active role in investigating the Watergate scandal: "From the day after the break-in, we kept waiting for someone to raise the roof. I regret he didn't take a stronger role from the start in condemning it and cleaning it up."

"For a time, I was mad as hell I didn't know more," said Robert C. Odle Jr., a former Nixon staffer and official at the President's re-election committee who was the first person to testify before the Senate Watergate committee. "They could have taken me into their confidence, but I'm glad they didn't."

Odle, a strong defender of the President, takes offense at those who describe the White House "as a dark, fortress-like garrison where everyone went around with paranoia and frowns."

He scowled at the image. "It wasn't like that," he said, rising from his chair to pace around his ninth-floor office at the Department of Housing and Urban Development where he has worked since last summer. "It was a fine place. They were principled people, generally."

"There were few affairs, little adultery, little drunkenness. Many of the people were church-going. I think a few individuals went wrong. One or two things were done improperly, and people attempted afterwards to cover up these things."

"You have to ask yourself in conscience. Might the people who covered it up not have done so if the vultures weren't waiting?"

In Odle's view, the edited transcripts "conclusively show the President had no more knowledge of the scandal than he said he had."

Should Nixon leave office or be impeached?

"I can't think of a greater national tragedy ... he said."

Some of the young people who, like Odle, carried the title, "Staff Assistant to the President," have been unable to find a job or found potential employers wary of anyone with White House connections. They view themselves as victims of guilt by association, even in cases where no evidence has surfaced to connect them in any way with Watergate.

Jeffery E. Donfeld, 30, a former Nixon staffer who worked for more than four years on Nixon's drug abuse program, said he received less than red carpet treatment when job hunting last summer.

He received indications, he said, that congressional leaders had little interest in awarding high government positions to any attorneys who had worked on the White House staff during Nixon's first term.

At most of the law firms and corporations where Donfeld interviewed, officials insisted on knowing if he had done anything that would subject him to prosecution or unfavorable publicity.

"Talk about resentment and disgust," said Donfeld, who now works for a Los Angeles law firm. "The fact that I served the president of the United States and committed no illegal acts and shouldn't be able to get a high position in government, I resent that."

Bobbie Greene Kilberg, a Yale Law School graduate who worked on Indian affairs and other domestic areas, echoed the view of many former aides when she said that in spite of "the stupidity of Watergate," she has not lost interest in politics.

"I may run for state legislature sometime," said Mrs. Kilberg, now a vice president of Mount Vernon College in Washington.

What annoys her, however, is when people ask her to justify the individual actions of Watergate just because she worked in the White House.

"We've tended to socialize increasingly only with our friends," Mrs. Kilberg said. "I resent the feeling of having to defend the two years I spent in the White House as though it is something to be ashamed of, rather than the beneficial experience it was."

Mideast Settlement Still Far Away

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israeli sources say the gap in the disengagement negotiations with Syria is as wide as ever despite a report by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger of some progress toward an agreement.

Kissinger reported progress after a nine-hour visit Sunday to Damascus, saying "we have passed from the state of general discussion and consideration to a detailed and complete examination of all the elements of disengagement."

But after a 2½-hour meeting between the American secretary and Israeli leaders, authoritative Israeli sources said Kissinger told Premier Golda Meir and her aides that the differences between the Syrian and Israeli terms for an Israeli withdrawal from the Golan Heights were as wide as before although the Syrians were showing a new readiness for a separation of forces.

The sources said Kissinger dwelt on "the alternatives to disengagement," evidently meaning another full-scale war. But Israeli Information Minister Shimon Peres indicated his government is not prepared to ease its terms.

He told newsmen: "I don't think that any change is needed in Israel's basic attitude."

The Israeli cabinet was called into session today to discuss the latest outline of the Syrian position, and Kissinger was to confer with government leaders afterward. He returns to Syria on Tuesday.

Kissinger told newsmen he was willing to continue commuting between Jerusalem and Damascus "as long as there is hope of making progress."

If a disengagement agreement can be reached, it is expected to provide for an Israeli withdrawal from most or all of the territory captured in the war last October plus part of Quneitra, the devastated capital of the Golan Heights half a mile on the Israeli side of the 1967 cease-fire line. Three strategic hills around Quneitra which the Israelis insisted on retaining probably would be turned over to the United Nations force that would man a buffer zone between the two armies.

Phone Frauds Bring Terms

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Two Ohio men were convicted in U.S. District Court Monday for using electronic "blue boxes" to make long distance calls without being billed.

Marvin W. Levy, 22, of Columbus, and William J. Waters, 26, of Chillicothe, will serve six months in jail and two and a half years probation, a spokesman for the U.S. Attorney's office said.

The sentences are the most severe ever handed down in the state for violation of the "fraud by wire" statute, the spokesman said.

Maximum sentence for the crime is five years in prison and a $1,000 fine.

The two were indicted in February following separate investigations by the FBI with the Ohio Bell Telephone Co. and the Chillicothe Telephone Co. Both entered pleas of guilty April 19.

WITCH OF SALEM—Laurie Cabot, of Salem, Mass., thinks she is a witch. The husky-voiced, divorced mother of two, teaches informal classes on natural law, mind control and mysticism. She also runs "The Witch Shop."

Hamilton County GOP Chairman Faces Struggle

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)—Dissident county and township officials will attempt to oust Hamilton County Republican Chairman Earl Barnes at a GOP Central Committee meeting tonight.

The dissidents are reported unhappy with Barnes' alliance with former Gov. James A. Rhodes and for losing control of Cincinnati City Council for two straight terms.

Hamilton County, one of Ohio's strongest GOP areas, also elected Democrat Thomas Luken this year in the 1st Congressional District. Luken is only the third Democrat to win that seat this century.

"I am a candidate and if they want to come after me, okay," said Barnes. "They got my dander up. I absolutely will not resign. I guess you could say I'm stubborn."

Vote Recount Slated

SIDNEY, Ohio (AP)—The Shelby County Board of Elections announced Monday it will take a recount of votes on an eight-mill Sidney school tax levy in the May 7 election.

The unofficial count showed the proposal losing by eight votes.

Children Face Starvation Due To Prices

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Many more children in poor countries face the danger of starvation because of new high food prices, the head of the United Nations Children's Fund said today.

"Before the recent price rises, it was estimated that ... there were some 10 million severely malnourished children in the world with a high risk of mortality," Executive Director Henry R. Labouisse said in a report to UNICEF's 30-nation executive board.

"Now we have to expect a considerable increase in their number.... It appears unlikely that there will be sufficient food and funds available for supplementary feeding on a scale to deal with the probable increase in child malnutrition."

The UNICEF board is meeting for the next two weeks at U.N. headquarters in New York. Labouisse warned that food surpluses have vanished and, since prices went up, government appropriations buy considerably less of what food there is.

He said food prices are up mainly because drought has cut supply, population increases have boosted demand and people in the richer countries are eating more meat, which diverts grain to animal feed.

"Of particular concern to UNICEF," he said, "prices for staple foods are rising rapidly in developing countries, where the lower income group spend approximately 80 per cent of their income on food"

"In the food deficit countries, a larger number of children in the lower income groups will suffer severe or moderate malnutrition. In fact, if past experience is any guide, young children will suffer first and most in any situation of scarcity We should be preparing not only for famines recognized as such, but for a widespread deterioration of nutrition among young children of lower income families" He stressed the need to "act quickly."

And, with the release of the transcripts, it is soul searching time again, more whys and hows.

"You got so carried away in that place with a feeling of moral righteousness that it's understandable some thought what they were doing was good for the country," said one disillusioned former Nixon aide. "I found myself saying so many times, the bureaucracy isn't going to help these people. I'm going to help them with the power of the White House. But it was illegal. Where do you draw the line?"

"If you did it by the rules and regulations, you'd be there 25 years. We didn't have that time. So sometimes you'd fudge and say, 'The President wants this done.'"

Even so, the aide and most of his departed colleagues do not agree with Gordon Strachan, the tall, sad-eyed young man who fought tears as he told the Senate Watergate committee last summer that based on his experience at the White House, he had this advice for young people interested in government service: "Stay away."

The White House often pointed out that almost one-third of the President's staff was 30 or under. In 1969 a reporter interviewed some of 30 White House aides with the title of staff assistant, deputy secretary or research assistant. Today, only about a half dozen remain.

John R. Price, a former executive secretary of the Urban Affairs Council and special assistant to the President, left the administration in 1971. Price, now 35 and a vice president of Manufacturers Trust Co. in New York, was interviewed after reading the edited transcripts of Nixon's Watergate conversations.

"It's very depressing there was not more leadership shown," he said. "The only things that come out is the instinct for survival ..."

"The supreme irony of the Nixon years was brought home to me by a memorandum (Daniel P.) Moynihan wrote to Nixon just before he was inaugurated. The gist of it was that it was Nixon's task to restore confidence and respect to the office of the presidency and American institutions."

Then Price added: "It is time for the President to step aside in favor of Vice President Ford."

Of the dozen former Nixon staffers interviewed, all between the ages of 28 and 35, most said they left the White House with mixed emotions: proud of having worked for the president of the United States, sickened to see so many of their colleagues facing indictments, court trials and jail, and relieved not to have been sucked into the whirlpool themselves.

Lee W. Huebner, a former Nixon speechwriter, offered these reflections on his five years in the White House: "When I first came to Washington, it was a great, glittering, glamorous and exciting place. When I left, it was sad and depressing."

"Everyone who remembers what it might have been is saddened it hasn't turned out the way we wanted it to."

Huebner, 33, now working for the Whitney Communications Corp. in New York, said he finds it hard to talk about his feeling on working for the Nixon White House.

The transcripts of the Watergate conversations are, in Huebner's view, "one of the most depressing things I've read. People still have questions."

But of his experience in the White House, Huebner insisted: "It is an extraordinary vantage point. I feel lucky to have had the opportunity. I met a lot of fine people there. I learned a lot."

He smiled at the memory, then shook his head. He was disappointed, he said, that Nixon didn't take a more active role in investigating the Watergate scandal. "From the day after the break-in, we kept waiting for someone to raise the roof. I regret he didn't take a stronger role from the start in condemning it and cleaning it up."

"For a time, I was mad as hell I didn't know more," said Robert C. Odle Jr., a former Nixon staffer and official at the President's re-election committee who was the first person to testify before the Senate Watergate committee. "They could have taken me into their confidence, but I'm glad they didn't."

Odle, a strong defender of the President, takes offense at those who describe the White House "as a dark, fortress-like garrison where everyone went around with paranoia and frowns."

He scoffed at the image. "It wasn't like that," he said, rising from his chair to pace around his ninth-floor office at the Department of Housing and Urban Development where he has worked since last summer. "It was a fine place. They were principled people, generally."

"There were few affairs, little adultery, little drunkenness. Many of the people were church-going. I think a few individuals went wrong. One or two things were done improperly, and people attempted afterwards to cover up these things."

"You have to ask yourself in conscience. Might the people who covered it up not have done so if the vultures weren't waiting?"

In Odle's view, the edited transcripts "conclusively show the President had no more knowledge of the scandal than he said he had."

Should Nixon leave office or be impeached?

"I can't think of a greater national tragedy ... he said."

Some of the young people who, like Odle, carried the title, "Staff Assistant to the President," have been unable to find a job or found potential employers wary of anyone with White House connections. They view themselves as victims of guilt by association, even in cases where no evidence has surfaced to connect them in any way with Watergate.

Jeffery E. Donfeld, 30, a former Nixon staffer who worked for more than four years on Nixon's drug abuse program, said he received less than red carpet treatment when job hunting last summer.

He received indications, he said, that congressional leaders had little interest in awarding high government positions to any attorneys who had worked on the White House staff during Nixon's first term.

At most of the law firms and corporations where Donfeld interviewed, officials insisted on knowing if he had done anything that would subject him to prosecution or unfavorable publicity.

"Talk about resentment and disgust," said Donfeld, who now works for a Los Angeles law firm. "The fact that I served the president of the United States and committed no illegal acts and shouldn't be able to get a high position in government, I resent that."

Bobbie Greene Kilberg, a Yale Law School graduate who worked on Indian affairs and other domestic areas, echoed the view of many former aides when she said that in spite of "the stupidity of Watergate," she has not lost interest in politics.

"I may run for state legislature sometime," said Mrs. Kilberg, now a vice president of Mount Vernon College in Washington.

What annoys her, however, is when people ask her to justify the individual actions of Watergate just because she worked in the White House.

"We've tended to socialize increasingly only with our friends," Mrs. Kilberg said. "I resent the feeling of having to defend the two years I spent in the White House as though it is something to be ashamed of, rather than the beneficial experience it was."

Phone Frauds Bring Terms

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Two Ohio men were convicted in U.S. District Court Monday for using electronic "blue boxes" to make long distance calls without being billed.

Marvin W. Levy, 22, of Columbus, and William J. Waters, 26, of Chillicothe, will serve six months in jail and two and a half years probation, a spokesman for the U.S. Attorney's office said.

The sentences are the most severe ever handed down in the state for violation of the "fraud by wire" statute, the spokesman said.

Maximum sentence for the crime is five years in prison and a $1,000 fine.

The two were indicted in February following separate investigations by the FBI with the Ohio Bell Telephone Co. and the Chillicothe Telephone Co. Both entered pleas of guilty April 19.

WITCH OF SALEM—Laurie Cabot, of Salem, Mass., thinks she is a witch. The husky-voiced, divorced mother of two, teaches informal classes on natural law, mind control and mysticism. She also runs "The Witch Shop."

Hamilton County GOP Chairman Faces Struggle

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)—Dissident county and township officials will attempt to oust Hamilton County Republican Chairman Earl Barnes at a GOP Central Committee meeting tonight.

The dissidents are reported unhappy with Barnes' alliance with former Gov. James A. Rhodes and for losing control of Cincinnati City Council for two straight terms.

Hamilton County, one of Ohio's strongest GOP areas, also elected Democrat Thomas Luken this year in the 1st Congressional District. Luken is only the third Democrat to win that seat this century.

"I am a candidate and if they want to come after me, okay," said Barnes. "They got my dander up. I absolutely will not resign. I guess you could say I'm stubborn."

Vote Recount Slated

SIDEY, Ohio (AP)—The Shelby County Board of Elections announced Monday it will take a recount of votes on an eight-mill Sidney school tax levy in the May 7 election.

The unofficial count showed the proposal losing by eight votes.

Children Face Starvation Due To Prices

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Many more children in poor countries face the danger of starvation because of new high food prices, the head of the United Nations Children's Fund said today.

"Before the recent price rises, it was estimated that ... there were some 10 million severely malnourished children in the world with a high risk of mortality," Executive Director Henry R. Labouisse said in a report to UNICEF's 30-nation executive board.

"Now we have to expect a considerable increase in their number.... It appears unlikely that there will be sufficient food and funds available for supplementary feeding on a scale to deal with the probable increase in child malnutrition."

The UNICEF board is meeting for the next two weeks at U.N. headquarters in New York.

Labouisse warned that food surpluses have vanished and, since prices went up, government appropriations buy considerably less of what food there is.

He said food prices are up mainly because drought has cut supply, population increases have boosted demand and people in the richer countries are eating more meat, which diverts grain to animal feed.

"Of particular concern to UNICEF," he said, "prices for staple foods are rising rapidly in developing countries, where the lower income group spend approximately 80 per cent of their income on food ..."

"In the food deficit countries, a larger number of children in the lower income groups will suffer severe or moderate malnutrition. In fact, if past experience is any guide, young children will suffer first and most in any situation of scarcity We should be preparing not only for famines recognized as such, but for a widespread deterioration of nutrition among young children of lower income families" He stressed the need to "act quickly."

Permission Sought To Build Natural Gas Pipeline

Requests for approval of a massive natural gas pipeline extending from Montana to Pennsylvania that would make gas reserves in northern Alaska and Canada available to customers of Columbia Gas of Ohio and other gas consumers in 26 states east of the Rocky Mountains were filed today with the U.S. government in Washington, D. C.

Known as the Northern Border Pipeline Co. project, the undertaking of a 1,600-mile natural gas transmission line from the U.S.-Canadian border in Montana southeast to Delmont, Pa., near Pittsburgh.

The northern Border project represents the final link in a proposed major new gas delivery system that originates on the North Slope of Alaska and extends 2,600 miles southeast through the Mackenzie River Delta regions of Canada to Port Moryan, Montana, on the Saskatchewan border. There the Alaskan and Canadian pipelines would link with the Northern Border pipeline system announced today.

Estimated combined total cost of the Alaskan and Canadian pipeline projects is about $5.7 billion, bringing total cost for the three systems to $7.5 billion.

The proposed line would cross Ohio and nine other northern tier states delivering Arctic gas to Columbia Gas Transmission Corp., and five other major U. S. gas transmission companies. Together these companies serve more than 200 utilities in 26 states that have a combined population of some 122 million people.

Columbia Gas Transmission in turn would supply Columbia Gas of Ohio and other affiliated and non-affiliated distribution companies. These companies serve more than four million customers in seven states and the District of Columbia, including the Circleville area.

In addition to Ohio, the Northern Border system will extend across Montana, North Dakota, South Dakota, Minnesota, Iowa, Illinois, Indiana and West Virginia into southwestern Pennsylvania.

In Ohio, it will enter the state at Chattanooga in Mercer County, and

Harsha Reports

BY WILLIAM H. HARSHA
Representative To Congress
Sixth District Of Ohio

The House of Representatives recently passed legislation increasing the rates of compensation for disabled veterans and of dependency and indemnity compensation for their survivors. There are currently over 2.2 million veterans who have been disabled while fighting in our country's wars and who receive disability payment compensation for the loss or reduction of their earning capacities resulting from service-connected injuries. The Vietnam War alone has added 364,000 wounded veterans with disabilities to those of prior wars. The last benefit increase for these veterans occurred in 1972, but because of the high toll inflation has taken on these benefits in just two years, this boost is extremely necessary.

Since 1972, for example, the cost-of-living has jumped nearly 13 per cent. Since the last increase in widows' and survivors' indemnities, furthermore, the cost-of-living has risen by almost 15 per cent. Until we can check this spiraling inflation, we must make every effort to see that those on fixed incomes, as many of these most severely disabled veterans are, receive realistic and adequate benefits.

Specifically, the new legislation would provide raises of 10.7 percent to 18 percent in basic disability rates. It would also authorize an 18 percent

Sludge Fertilizer Yields Tomato Plants

TAVARES, Fla. (AP) — Charles O'Neill fertilized his lawn with three tons of sludge, expecting it to produce lush green grass. Instead, he ended up with 40,000 tomato plants.

"Ripe or green, I like them," said the 63-year-old O'Neill, a cabinet maker. "But I'm not a nut over them...and I'm sure I won't be after this is over."

O'Neill said that when he started hauling the sludge in, a sewage plant official told him he would probably later find a few tomato plants growing in his lawn.

"Naturally, we thought we'd have some here and there, but certainly not this many," O'Neill added. "We've even got four or five watermelon and pumpkin vines in with them."

Three different kinds of tomatoes surround the couple's white, two-bedroom home in Tavares, located in the heart of Central Florida's lake country.

"We've got cherry tomatoes, the regular ones and one kind I'm not sure of," said Mrs. O'Neill.

The plants, laden with tomatoes, are about two feet high and will be ready for harvest in two weeks.

Asked how the sludge produced tomato plants, O'Neill explains: "Well, I don't quite know how you say it politely, but they came from people. Tomato seeds aren't digested. They just pass through."

There are currently over 2.2 million veterans who have been disabled while fighting in our country's wars and who receive disability payment compensation for the loss or reduction of their earning capacities resulting from service-connected injuries. The Vietnam War alone has added 364,000 wounded veterans with disabilities to those of prior wars. The last benefit increase for these veterans occurred in 1972, but because of the high toll inflation has taken on these benefits in just two years, this boost is extremely necessary.

Since 1972, for example, the cost-of-living has jumped nearly 13 per cent. Since the last increase in widows' and survivors' indemnities, furthermore, the cost-of-living has risen by almost 15 per cent. Until we can check this spiraling inflation, we must make every effort to see that those on fixed incomes, as many of these most severely disabled veterans are, receive realistic and adequate benefits.

Specifically, the new legislation would provide raises of 10.7 percent to 18 percent in basic disability rates. It would also authorize an 18 percent

Sludge Fertilizer Yields Tomato Plants

TAVARES, Fla. (AP) — Charles O'Neill fertilized his lawn with three tons of sludge, expecting it to produce lush green grass. Instead, he ended up with 40,000 tomato plants.

"Ripe or green, I like them," said the 63-year-old O'Neill, a cabinet maker. "But I'm not a nut over them...and I'm sure I won't be after this is over."

O'Neill said that when he started hauling the sludge in, a sewage plant official told him he would probably later find a few tomato plants growing in his lawn.

"Naturally, we thought we'd have some here and there, but certainly not this many," O'Neill added. "We've even got four or five watermelon and pumpkin vines in with them."

Three different kinds of tomatoes surround the couple's white, two-bedroom home in Tavares, located in the heart of Central Florida's lake country.

"We've got cherry tomatoes, the regular ones and one kind I'm not sure of," said Mrs. O'Neill.

The plants, laden with tomatoes, are about two feet high and will be ready for harvest in two weeks.

Asked how the sludge produced tomato plants, O'Neill explains: "Well, I don't quite know how you say it politely, but they came from people. Tomato seeds aren't digested. They just pass through."

Reds Turn Back Giants, 4-1

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — John Bench's hitting, combined with an upsurge in Cincinnati pitching, gave the Reds a 4-1 triumph over San Francisco and moved Cincinnati within a half game of the third place Giants in the National League West. "It really feels good to be swinging the bat," said Bench who had a home run and a single Monday night, giving the Reds their third straight win and four victories in the last five games. Bench broke out of his slump May 3 in Chicago when Manager George "Sparky" Anderson moved the .194 hitter from fifth to third in the lineup.

Since then Bench has had 13 hits in 29 trips to the plate including three home runs. He is now batting .265. But losing pitcher John D'Acquisto, who beat the Reds 4-3 in San Francisco, was not about to be scared by Bench. "I had to challenge him," said the left-hander, who served up the home run in the fourth inning. "He was just better than me—this time." "It was the kind of pitch you look for all day in batting practice," said Bench, "but he's got a lot of stuff and he's learning to be a good pitcher." Tony Perez followed Bench with a triple and scored on Merv Rettenmund's ground out.

Cincinnati got two insurance runs in the seventh when Pete Rose doubled home Cesar Geronimo and scored on Joe Morgan's second hit of the game. Morgan had gone 0-17 before the game and hit a line single to right in the third.

"It was a bullet," said Morgan with a straight face, "anything is a bullet when you're 0-for-17."

San Francisco's lone run came in the fifth when Gary Matthews hit his fourth home run of the season.

Giants' first base coach Joe Amalfitano was ejected by third base umpire Bill Williams in the seventh inning when Gary Kingman's bunt, which appeared to hit the third base bag, was declared foul.

"I'm gonna keep everybody in suspense," grinned Reds third baseman Dan Driessen afterward when asked if the ball was actually foul. Kingman struck out leaving Matthews stranded.

Giants Manager Charlie Fox was livid after the play and declined to be quoted. His team is now 7-4 on its current road trip.

Don Gullett, with relief from Pedro Borbon in the eighth, who needed only five pitches to end the game, was the winner, 3-3. D'Acquisto is 2-4.

Gullett's victory, plus good efforts by Fred Norman and Clay Kirby winning a doubleheader over Houston Sunday, have lowered the earned run average of Cincinnati pitching to 1.19 in the last nine games.

Mike Caldwell goes to the mound tonight for the Giants against Cincinnati's Jack Billingham. Both have 5-1 records.

TV's Pontius Plays Ball At Capital

Pickaway County's senior basketball Player of the Year and two-time all-Ohio Class AA performer Craig Pontius will attend Capital University in September and join the cage program of Coach Vince Chickerella.

Pontius, who received the Bob Bowsher trophy for being the outstanding senior cager in Pickaway County, averaged 16.2 points a game for Teays Valley last year, shooting 50.2 percent from the floor and 76 percent from the free throw line. He is a 6-4 guard.

For two consecutive seasons Pontius, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Pontius of Route 1, Ashville, has received numerous post-season honors.

As a junior he was his team's most valuable player, first team all-Metro League, first team all-District, and honorable mention all-Ohio. He repeated all those honors during 1974 and received Special Mention Class AA all-Ohio honors from the Associated Press.

"We are especially pleased to add Craig to our basketball program," said Chickerella. "He is an excellent prospect and also a very fine student who should become a credit to Capital University the way he is a credit to Teays Valley High School."

Suit Planned On Cincinnati School Setup

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)— Cincinnati's embattled conservative board of education voted to file suit against a federal agency and ask a U.S. District Court to uphold its neighborhood school system.
"It's about time we faced up to this," said President Charles Lindberg, a lawyer.
He said the suit would be filed today. The action beats civil rights groups to the punch, he said. The local National Association for the Advancement of Colored People chapter has threatened for months to file suit.
The suit names the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, which April 25 impounded $911,918 in emergency school relief funds, as defendant.
The HEW office in Chicago said the new board failed to implement the total desegregation policy adopted Dec. 10 by the outgoing, lame duck, liberal-controlled board.
The suit challenges the right of the HEW to withhold federal aid, charging it was done "for the purpose of coercing the board to abandon its policy of providing a quality integrated education to the children of Cincinnati through the maintenance of neighborhood schools, and for the purpose of coercing the board to overturn and restructure the system of public education now in operation in Cincinnati."
The new board implemented a teacher integration plan and is creating alternative schools. Neither has been approved by HEW's Chicago office.

New German Cabinet Set

BONN, Germany (AP) — West Germany's next chancellor, Helmut Schmidt, says he is ready to name a new cabinet to replace Chancellor Willy Brandt's.
Informed sources said Special Minister Egon Bahr, Brandt's chief negotiator for his Ostpolitik policy of East-West détente, is likely to be dropped.
"We have agreed in principle on everything," Schmidt said after he and other leaders of the ruling Social Democratic party met with their partners in the government coalition, the Free Democrats. He said they agreed on a new cabinet and government program and would hold one or two more sessions to work out details.
Schmidt said the new cabinet will have 16 members, two fewer than Brandt's. Schmidt is to be elected chancellor Thursday by the Bundestag, the lower house of parliament, and is expected to announce his cabinet Friday.
Interior Minister Hans-Dietrich Genscher of the Free Democrats is expected to become vice chancellor and foreign minister. Free Democratic party leader Walter Scheel held the two posts in Brandt's cabinet but is to be elected West Germany's president on Wednesday.

He was the prominent hitter in the Indian's three-game sweep at California with seven hits in 12 trips to the plate.

Aussies Face Elimination From Match

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Australia's defending Davis Cup tennis champions were threatened with elimination Monday after losing a marathon doubles match to India and falling behind 2-1 in the best-of-five Eastern Zone final.
The underdog Indians moved within one victory of upsetting the Aussies when the Amritraj brothers—Vijay and Anand—outlasted John Alexander and Colin Dibley 17-15, 6-8, 6-3, 1-18, 6-4 under a scorching Calcutta sun. The gruelling match lasted 5 hours, 30 minutes over two days. It has been halted Sunday after the first three sets because of darkness.
The Indians need only one victory in Tuesday's final two singles to oust the Aussies and advance against the winner of Europe's B final. The remaining singles will match Alexander against India's Jasjit Singh and Vijay Amritraj against Australia's Bob Giltinan.
Meanwhile, Yugoslavia and West Germany reached the European B semifinals, France advanced through the European A competition and South Africa won the American zone finals.

'Denny' Shute Succumbs At Age 69

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Hermon "Denny" Shute, who won back-to-back PGA championships in 1936 and 1937, died Monday at his Akron home. He was 69.
Shute was the last golfer to win the PGA two years in a row.

the Los Angeles Dodgers beat the Houston Astros 8-4, the Cincinnati Reds downed the San Francisco Giants 4-1 and the Atlanta Braves shaded the San Diego Padres 7-5. Chicago, Montreal, Philadelphia and Pittsburgh were not scheduled.

Dodgers 8, Astros 4
Jimmy Wynn's two-run single highlighted a five-run fifth inning and he drove in another run with a sacrifice fly. Wynn had four homers and seven RBI in his two previous games.

Unbeaten Andy Messersmith scattered eight hits and picked up his fourth victory as the Dodgers widened their National League West Division lead to 5½ games over the Astros.

Reds 4, Giants 1
Johnny Bench drilled his sixth home run of the season and Don Gullett and Pedro Borbon teamed up to pitch a six-hitter. Bench's solo shot came in the fourth inning and broke up a scoreless duel between Gullett and rookie John D'Acquisto.

Despite their fourth victory in the last five games, the Reds remained in fourth place, 6½ games behind the Dodgers.

Braves 7, Padres 5
Dusty Baker drove in four runs with three singles and a homer, offsetting San Diego homers by Willie McCovey and Dave Roberts. It was the Padres' sixth consecutive loss.

Aussies Face Elimination From Match

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Australia's defending Davis Cup tennis champions were threatened with elimination Monday after losing a marathon doubles match to India and falling behind 2-1 in the best-of-five Eastern Zone final.
The underdog Indians moved within one victory of upsetting the Aussies when the Amritraj brothers—Vijay and Anand—outlasted John Alexander and Colin Dibley 17-15, 6-8, 6-3, 1-18, 6-4 under a scorching Calcutta sun. The gruelling match lasted 5 hours, 30 minutes over two days. It has been halted Sunday after the first three sets because of darkness.
The Indians need only one victory in Tuesday's final two singles to oust the Aussies and advance against the winner of Europe's B final. The remaining singles will match Alexander against India's Jasjit Singh and Vijay Amritraj against Australia's Bob Giltinan.
Meanwhile, Yugoslavia and West Germany reached the European B semifinals, France advanced through the European A competition and South Africa won the American zone finals.

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — River Downs Race Course is dark today with the advent of Sunday racing at the southwestern Ohio thoroughbred track. Son O' Fleet won the mile and 70-yard feature in 1:44 3-5 by four lengths Tuesday and paid $8.20, $5.20 and $4.40. Fancy Circle placed, paying $3.20 and $3.40, and Cat Creek was third for $4.20.
The crowd of 3,357 bet $254,690.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCIS DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR WEDNESDAY
ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 20): Some plans may have to be changed whether you like it or not. Be composed, however, for you may well profit by the change. Keep your sense of humor sharp.

TAURUS (Apr. 21 to May 21): Going it alone will not be the answer now. There are definite areas where you will have to associate with, plan with others. Teamwork!

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21): Direct your innate enthusiasm into progressive channels. You can accomplish more than many others during this period. Especially favored: written matters and travel plans.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23): A time for some introspection. Through reflect, you will get a clearer view of the road ahead, to make plans for further accomplishment and satisfaction.

LEO (July 24 to Aug. 23): Discretion should be your watchword. Keep disposition even in order to cope with the ruffled ones you meet — and there may be several.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23): Take care in counselling others, imparting information. Avoid arguments as such but discuss calmly important situations, transactions.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23): Do not become disillusioned if some disapprove of your ideas and are unwilling to fall in with your plans. If understanding and tolerant, you just COULD bring them around.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 22): Make no decisions until all avenues have been explored. Should temporary deterrents appear, handle discerningly, with clear-headedness, smart control.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21): Your ingenuity, foresight and intuition should be at a peak now. A good time to look into new offerings and gauge their real value.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Stellar influences now warn against misleading influences, deceit and dubious schemes. Be alert and counteract with your innate integrity and good judgment.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): If you really have time for "extras" on a busy day, take them on judiciously. Don't overtax energies and don't hesitate to ask for help if you find yourself in a bind.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Plenty of competition about, but don't let it dismay you. Anchor your sails to the well-founded and engage opponents with enthusiasm.

YOU BORN TODAY are an idealist and a humanitarian at heart. You are imaginative, intuitive, poetic and something of a dreamer. But, as is not always the case with dreamers, you have the happy faculty of making your dreams come true. Your versatility is outstanding, but you express yourself best through music, writing or painting. Your love for home and family is boundless and you will even sacrifice yourself to bring happiness to those you love. You would make an outstanding teacher; could also succeed in medicine or in any field involving travel. Birthdate of: James Mason, film star.

NEW YORK (AP) — Political jousting is rumored to be the sole occupation of Washington, D.C. It therefore is surprising to learn there is another facet of life in the nation's capital.

Said fact is a limited move by Post-Newsweek Stations, Inc., a Washington Post subsidiary, into the costly business of producing TV shows for syndication or possible network use.

The company, which owns TV stations in Washington, Hartford, Conn., and Miami and Jacksonville, Fla., currently is cooking up: —Three hour-long black music specials.

—A 13-part historical series, each segment an hour, called "The American Documents." The topics range from the history of presidential inaugurations to American propaganda during World War I.

—Eight specials involving various plays performed by England's Young Vic troupe, an offshoot of the National Theater Company. It'll tape shows for Post-Newsweek Stations, Inc., this year and next.

The man overseeing all this is Ray Hubbard, the company's vice president for programming and executive producer for all the shows. Hubbard said, "The American Documents" series already is being offered in syndication and the black music specials will be offered soon.

He said it isn't known yet how the Young Vic series will be sold: "We're talking to possible syndicators and also to companies that might buy one or more of the plays and place them themselves, either on a spot basis or on one of the networks."

Hubbard, who declined to say how much the Young Vic series cost other than to note "it's the most expensive single project we've ever done."

He was asked why it took that step, considering the cost and risks. "It's because we feel that one of the things we have to do to keep our stations operating as well as possible is to supply productions you can't buy anywhere else," he said.

"And the things we're doing are not the sort of things that normally get into syndication."

The company's production efforts, he says, have the effect of slaying two birds with one stone. It both helps his stations' programming and offers the prospect of recouping the production cost or even turning a profit by selling the shows to other stations.

"And if I can fill my own program requirements with taste and class by adding just a bit more money," Hubbard said, "I can move it into a level where it's eminently marketable. Because it solves somebody else's program problems, too."

The first horseless carriage with a fare meter was built by the Daimler Motor Co. and put on the streets of Stuttgart, Germany, in 1897, according to the National Geographic Society.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCIS DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR WEDNESDAY

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 20): Some plans may have to be changed whether you like it or not. Be composed, however, for you may well profit by the change. Keep your sense of humor sharp.

TAURUS (Apr. 21 to May 21): Going it alone will not be the answer now. There are definite areas where you will have to associate with, plan with others. Teamwork!

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21): Direct your innate enthusiasm into progressive channels. You can accomplish more than many others during this period. Especially favored: written matters and travel plans.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23): A time for some introspection. Through reflect, you will get a clearer view of the road ahead, to make plans for further accomplishment and satisfaction.

LEO (July 24 to Aug. 23): Discretion should be your watchword. Keep disposition even in order to cope with the ruffled ones you meet — and there may be several.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): If you really have time for "extras" on a busy day, take them on judiciously. Don't overtax energies and don't hesitate to ask for help if you find yourself in a bind.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Plenty of competition about, but don't let it dismay you. Anchor your sails to the well-founded and engage opponents with enthusiasm.

YOU BORN TODAY are an idealist and a humanitarian at heart. You are imaginative, intuitive, poetic and something of a dreamer. But, as is not always the case with dreamers, you have the happy faculty of making your dreams come true. Your versatility is outstanding, but you express yourself best through music, writing or painting. Your love for home and family is boundless and you will even sacrifice yourself to bring happiness to those you love. You would make an outstanding teacher; could also succeed in medicine or in any field involving travel. Birthdate of: James Mason, film star.

Increased Farm Production Requires Land Protection

Production of more food from Pickaway County farmland is the name of the game this year. But to stay in the game more land protection is also necessary, says Don Archer, district conservationist in Pickaway County for the U. S. Soil Conservation Service (SCS).

Farmers in Pickaway County and across the nation are putting more of their farms into crops in 1974. An estimated 900,000 acres not used for cropland in recent years will be put into cultivated crops in Ohio this year.

One practice used more frequently by conservation farmers to protect their land is no-till farming. No-till or zero tillage has proven very effective in controlling soil loss on sloping land in Ohio.

No-tillage means that the seed is planted directly into a cover of crop residue. In one trip across the field the farmer plants the seed, fertilizes, and adds herbicide to prevent weed growth and insecticide to control insects.

No-tillage corn production has expanded rapidly since its introduction to Ohio farmers in about 1967. This energy saving method was used to produce over 120,000 acres of corn in 1973.

No-tillage offers some real advantages over conventional methods of soil preparation, Archer noted. No-tillage leaves aftermath of previous crops on the soil surface as mulch to reduce water and wind erosion. The method also requires much less fuel to establish a crop than conventional ground preparation methods.

No-tillage, when properly performed, gives the highest yield potential for many well drained soils in Ohio and may be a good alternate for many medium drained soils, Archer said.

For more information on how no-till farming will perform on your land, contact your local Soil Conservation Service or Soil and Water Conservation District Office.

Companies Blast Taconite Order

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP) — Reserve Mining Co. and its two parent firms have filed a brief strongly criticizing U.S. District Judge Miles Lord's order that Reserve stop discharging asbestos-type fibers into Lake Superior and the air from its taconite processing plant at Silver Bay, Minn.

The government last August took Reserve to court in an attempt to stop the firm's daily discharge of some 67,000 tons of waste taconite rock into Lake Superior.

Several witnesses testified that tiny asbestos-type fibers found in the drinking water of several North Shore communities had entered the lake as part of the taconite wastes.

Judge Lord issued the order April 20 halting the discharge, and Reserve shut down its Minnesota operations for two days. However, the order was lifted by a three-judge panel of the 8th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in St. Louis until 2 p.m. Wednesday, when the panel will meet to hear a request for a permanent stay.

Reserve and its parent companies, the Armco and Republic Steel corporations, have filed a brief with the appeals court contending that "never before" has such a far-reaching action been based on "such tenuous, insubstantial, insufficient and speculative" evidence.

The brief was filed in support of a motion by the defendants for a permanent stay of Judge Lord's order pending their appeal of that decision.

Reserve and its parent companies contended the judge's action was unnecessary "in view of the fact that no emergency situation exists because of the presence of asbestos-type fibers in the drinking water taken from Lake Superior.

The 47-page brief submitted by the defendants summarizes evidence produced in the trial and deals most specifically with public-health testimony and the potential economic and social impacts of a Reserve shutdown.

The defendants contend in their brief that the asbestos-type fibers enter Lake Superior naturally from a variety of sources, including tributary streams, and will remain in significant quantities even after Reserve stops discharging taconite wastes into the lake.

Increased Farm Production Requires Land Protection

Production of more food from Pickaway County farmland is the name of the game this year. But to stay in the game more land protection is also necessary, says Don Archer, district conservationist in Pickaway County for the U. S. Soil Conservation Service (SCS).

Farmers in Pickaway County and across the nation are putting more of their farms into crops in 1974. An estimated 900,000 acres not used for cropland in recent years will be put into cultivated crops in Ohio this year.

One practice used more frequently by conservation farmers to protect their land is no-till farming. No-till or zero tillage has proven very effective in controlling soil loss on sloping land in Ohio.

No-tillage means that the seed is planted directly into a cover of crop residue. In one trip across the field the farmer plants the seed, fertilizes, and adds herbicide to prevent weed growth and insecticide to control insects.

No-tillage corn production has expanded rapidly since its introduction to Ohio farmers in about 1967. This energy saving method was used to produce over 120,000 acres of corn in 1973.

No-tillage offers some real advantages over conventional methods of soil preparation, Archer noted. No-tillage leaves aftermath of previous crops on the soil surface as mulch to reduce water and wind erosion. The method also requires much less fuel to establish a crop than conventional ground preparation methods.

No-tillage, when properly performed, gives the highest yield potential for many well drained soils in Ohio and may be a good alternate for many medium drained soils, Archer said.

For more information on how no-till farming will perform on your land, contact your local Soil Conservation Service or Soil and Water Conservation District Office.

Companies Blast Taconite Order

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP) — Reserve Mining Co. and its two parent firms have filed a brief strongly criticizing U.S. District Judge Miles Lord's order that Reserve stop discharging asbestos-type fibers into Lake Superior and the air from its taconite processing plant at Silver Bay, Minn.

The government last August took Reserve to court in an attempt to stop the firm's daily discharge of some 67,000 tons of waste taconite rock into Lake Superior.

Several witnesses testified that tiny asbestos-type fibers found in the drinking water of several North Shore communities had entered the lake as part of the taconite wastes.

Judge Lord issued the order April 20 halting the discharge, and Reserve shut down its Minnesota operations for two days. However, the order was lifted by a three-judge panel of the 8th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in St. Louis until 2 p.m. Wednesday, when the panel will meet to hear a request for a permanent stay.

Reserve and its parent companies, the Armco and Republic Steel corporations, have filed a brief with the appeals court contending that "never before" has such a far-reaching action been based on "such tenuous, insubstantial, insufficient and speculative" evidence.

The brief was filed in support of a motion by the defendants for a permanent stay of Judge Lord's order pending their appeal of that decision.

Reserve and its parent companies contended the judge's action was unnecessary "in view of the fact that no emergency situation exists because of the presence of asbestos-type fibers in the drinking water taken from Lake Superior.

The 47-page brief submitted by the defendants summarizes evidence produced in the trial and deals most specifically with public-health testimony and the potential economic and social impacts of a Reserve shutdown.

The defendants contend in their brief that the asbestos-type fibers enter Lake Superior naturally from a variety of sources, including tributary streams, and will remain in significant quantities even after Reserve stops discharging taconite wastes into the lake.
